PHS Parents Sharply Divided over Proposed Curriculum Requirements

It's an ancient battle, in Princeton. In the corridors of the high school, it's hostility between the greasers and the jocks on one side and the college preparatory kids on the other. In the adult world, it's the insulated University community on one side of Nassau and the Non-U. town across the street.

In its current manifestation, it's a new debate at Princeton High School: should a kid be required to take home ec., typing or auto repair in order to graduate?

George Petrillo, principal of the high school, wants to require all students to take three semesters in any of five areas: art, home economics, music, industrial education or business education. Graduation requirements would be raised from 100 to 105 credits. The high school has 70 courses in these five fields. Plenty, Mr. Petrillo says, to allow a certain freedom of choice.

Monday night in the high school cafeteria, Mr. Petrillo explained and defended his proposal before a polite and divided audience of parents, PHS department heads and school board candidates.

"Academic students tend to avoid non-academic subjects," Mr. Petrillo began. "By requiring this core, we would expose students to new fields, give them more opportunity to maximize their potential."

In today's world, the principal said, there is need for the development of practical skills. And there are new goals for men and women.

When one parent protested that this curriculum was hardly a "core," and asked why required math and science had been scrubbed from the original proposal, Mr. Petrillo replied that in the class surveyed, all but four students took at least one year of math, anyway.

"What's the sense of requiring it if students are taking it anyhow?" he asked. "Where would you stop? Kids would then have almost no choice."

Besides, 85-90 percent of PHS students are college-bound and, one parent pointed out, must therefore take math, science and languages anyway.

You're only thinking in Ivy League terms, he was told.

"That 85 percent doesn't mean four-year academic institutions," said Richard Saldon, head of PHS guidance. "Only about two-thirds of that 85 percent go to four-year academic colleges.

"And many colleges just aren't that way any more," explained Catherine Stecchini, head of the PHS English department. "It's a reflection of what's going on in many colleges. Heaven knows I've stood up for the humanities forever! But I've talked to kids who come back here for a visit----they wish they had other, practical skills."

"What about the vocational students? Shouldn't they be required to take more academic subjects," one parent asked

Mr. Petrillo listed several new courses to be offered at PHS in the fall, including one in technical math for kids on the vocational side in the

Pike, Madden Win Easily, Budget Narrowly Beaten

The $8 million school budget was defeated Tuesday and incumbent Winthrop Pike and newcomer Dale Madden easily won the Township's two seats on the board in an election characterized by a dazzling display of community apathy.

In the Borough, nobody even bothered to run against Robin Wallack. And 345 people voted, out of a registered total of 5,541. In the Township, 1,652 out of 8,226 voters went to the polls.

Mr. Pike woo with 1,294 and Mr. Madden with 1,111. Opponents Elizabeth Smith and John Bailey received 459 and 251 respectively.

The current expenses budget went down by 971 "no" to 893 "yes." Capital outlay was defeated by a vote of 961 "no" to 860 "yes."

The defeated budget now goes to Borough Council and Township Committee. Under new legislation just passed by the legislature and awaiting signature by Governor Brendan Byrne, the municipal governing bodies have 15 days to make cuts in the budget and return it to the board.

If the board agrees with the cuts, the budget is approved without a second referendum. If board and governing bodies do not agree, the budget goes to the Commissioner of Education for final action.

Of the budget defeat, victorious candidate Pike said, "I think it's a result of the economic picture and people's unease." Mr. Pike is president of the school board and will probably be re-elected to that post when the board holds its re-organization meeting next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Community Park School.

"There aren't any minor cuts left in that budget," said board member Dietrich Meyerhofer after the returns were in, "with an inflation rate of 10%, a per-pupil budget decrease already made of 4%, we've made all the cuts we can without cutting into programs."

"I'm very sorry the budget went down," said board vice-president Hannah Fox, "But I don't see much than can really be cut."

Defeated candidate Elizabeth Smith said her fellow Township taxpayers are "desperately worried about taxes." Regarding her own defeat, she shrugged and said:

"Retrenchment into three-R thinking is happening throughout education. I think I could have added a new dimension."

Mr. Pike issued a statement rebutting charges of sexism and racism in his vote against re-appointment of Virginia Euell as Middle School principal. "Unfounded and irresponsible," he said. Mr. Pike pointed out that he had voted to support the appointment of Riverside Principal Edith Francis, who is both female and black.

He added that two of the three appointments he voted against two weeks ago were white, and one was a man.

Save the Dinky Committee Finds Ambiguity Of Charges against It Difficult to Combat

The dinky is still strapped across its own rails. The February 26 preliminary report on northeast railroads released by the United States Railway Association says the dinky shouldn't carry freight and would have to be subsidized in order to continue.

But the language is so ambiguous that one "Save the Dinky" member said that "inferentially," the report supports passenger service on the dinky, while another said the report clearly meant the dinky had to go.

"Save the Dinky" members were scheduled to meet Tuesday night to plan strategy for the next move. Hearings start the week of March 17 in Trenton. Edwin C. Hutter, of "Save the Dinky," says no consensus has yet been reached on how to proceed.

Here's what the report said:

"It is not recommended that freight service be provided on the Princeton branch by the Conrail system. Continued operation of the line would require rail service subsidy. Under 1973 traffic, revenue and cost levels, this line generates an annual excess financial burden amounting to $9,626 or $642 per carload. Recovery of cost would require both an increase in traffic and a rate increase over 1973 levels."

Promptly, William Sutphin of Princeton Township Committee challenged those figures. To claim that only 15 freight cars travelled the route in all of 1973 is ridiculous, he said. He suspects that the U.S.R.A. didn't identify freight way-bills properly and that many such bills read "Princeton Junction" when actually the shipments went all the way to Princeton.

"Their data is inaccurate," he says flatly. "As a start, they say the line is 2.9 miles long. Well, it's actually 2.7 and although that doesn't sound like much, it means 7½% overestimation of allocated costs. Also, they say it takes four hours, round trip, to deliver freight on the dinky line to Princeton, but it's only a five-minute ride to the Junction!"

Mr. Hutter points to discrepancies between U.S.R.A. facts and New Jersey Department of Transportation facts. He thinks the U.S.R.A. may have overlooked what the D.O.T. gave them in late winter of last year. Cost figures on branch lines weren't carefully incorporated into the report, Mr. Hutter says; in fact, a 56-page report with a 26-page appendix isn't in last week's two volume document.

The state's Department of Transportation is grumpy about the report, too. Commissioner Alan Sagner told a meeting of the state Chamber of Commerce Monday that the plan would be a burden on state taxpayers and on industry.

When the report mentions "subsidy," it means a two-year-only subsidy under which the state pays 30% and the Federal government 70%. Mr. Sagner wants 100% Federal subsidy.

The Conrail system, envisioned by last week's preliminary report, is a freight system; however, the report acknowledges the importance of a passenger system to the northeast and would assign such a high-speed passenger line to the main line of the Penn Central. "Save the Dinky" members regard the dinky as an integral part of that line.

"It seems madness," said Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley at his Tuesday press conference, "to have one arm of the Federal government trying to get people to stop using their cars, and another arm trying to drop mass transportation."

STATISTICS IMPRESSIVE

On Need for the Dinky.

"Long-range, the importance of the Dinky will grow---not diminish," said Robert W. Cawley, mayor of Princeton Borough this week.

Looking beyond his own borders, Mayor Cawley talked about the growth of East and West Windsor, Plainsboro and of course, the Borough and Township of Princeton.

Last week, when "Save the Dinky" partisans went to Washington, their figures on future growth impressed the director of the Rail Services Planning Office of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

A report by the Station Access Committee of West Windsor, an advisory body to that municipality's planning board, shows in bold, strong design the growth of the area and its need for some kind of public transportation.

An additional 30,600 people "in the immediate future" is the key figure. Growth of Princeton (9,000 more people); Plainsboro (20,000 more); East Windsor (6,000); West Windsor (400); Lawrence (2,400) and Hamilton (2,800)--- work-study program, and a course in consumer science, which will be interdisciplinary, between shop and science.

He also mentioned a course in general physics for "the B-minus, C-minus kids who have shied away from high-powered physics," Mr. Petrillo said. There will also be a basic science course.

"If a kid is really a student and wants an additional academic course, why should that kid be forced into industrial arts?" asked one parent.

Mr. Petrillo explained that the three semesters---7½ credits---should, ideally, be taken in freshman and sophomore years, leaving plenty of time for more academics in junior and senior years. Like spending all day Saturday working on the car so you'd have Sunday free to read Proust, one parent observed, as an aside.

Duplication Inevitable. Several parents pointed out that subjects like art and music are a required part of the Middle School curriculum, so that a student could arrive at the door of freshman year at PHS saying, "Oh, no! Not THAT again!"

"You want a bunch of deadheads in a music appreciation class who want to be somewhere else? What have you achieved?" demanded one parent.

"A kid has had all this in Middle School, and has taken piano lessons privately for five years."

"We hope to give the guidance department power to make exceptions," Mr Petrillo said.

One critic of the new proposal said the PHS curriculum has only "performing" courses in music and art---you have to be an artist or play an instrument or sing. However, in the new course list Mr Petrillo announced Monday, there is an "Introduction to Music Appreciation."

The new-course list also included "Home Maintenance and Repair," "Human Growth and Development" and a pre-school learning center.

Another Reason. The sharpest criticism was levelled by Mrs Rosalind Frisch, who charged that Mr. Petrillo wanted the new requirements so he could retain certain teachers and keep certain courses alive that might otherwise die.

Home Economics' cost per registration is $440, she said, and instrumental music is $269, compared to $122 for social studies and $136 for the Learning Community.

"These courses are desperate for students," she declared, "If you fill them with students, the costs go down and then you can justify keeping them."

Mr. Petrillo challenged her to prove that was his motive in designing the "core," and he told her he has been directed to drop 16.9 staff positions, regardless.

School board member Hannah Fox pointed out that courses like music or home ec. can be costly because of equipment and facilities required.

Social Barrier Attacked. "I approve of this proposal because it's an attack on the social barriers in this school and in this town," one parent said fervently. "Kids need to learn to respect each other's abilities. They need to get away from this thing of 'Only greasers' take certain courses."

"I don't like the idea of compulsion--requiring kids to take these courses," said a parent who was more or less on the approving side, "but unless you require them, parents will apply suasion to keep their kids in the academic stream."

Examining the proposal from another angle, one father said he was startled to learn that there are so many courses in this "core" area: "Too many!" he exclaimed, "23 courses in Industrial Education? Diversification is fine, but that's too many for a school like PHS."

"You cannot force kids to learn what they don't want to," said one parent glumly.

"The Tower," PHS newspaper, isn't happy about the Petrillo proposals.

"Is it the beginning of a regression into the past?" the student editorial writer asks, "In the next few years, will the final vestiges of free choice be completely annihilated? Who will be the first teacher to revert to the old method of memorization and recitation? In order to prevent a return to such conservatism caution and wisdom must be foremost in the minds of those with whom the final decision rests."

Budget Hearings Set

No sooner has the taxpayer stopped reeling from the introduction of municipal and county budgets than public hearing time comes around and the wound is rubbed all over again.

Township is the first this year. Public hearing on the Township's $3,325,294 budget will be held next Monday at 8 in Township Hall. The local rate is up two cents from the present budget, from 50 cents to 52 cents.

Borough taxpayers may comment on their budget next Tuesday at 8 in Borough Hall. The Borough budget's local purposes tax rate is exactly where it was this year- 97 cents. The Borough budget is $2,919,958.

Copies of explanatory statements of the budgets are available in municipal halls for taxpayers who want to study first.

Federal Funds May Be Available for Land Bank

Before settling down to the present and the proposed site-plan review ordinance, Township Mayor Jay Bleiman told the Princeton Regional Planning Board audience Tuesday night that the board has looked to the future and made a "pre-application" for $250,000 in Federal Housing and Urban Development funds.

Money could be used as a land bank, Mayor Bleiman said. The Real Estate Research Corporation, which has been making an economic feasibility study of the Planning Board's village housing concept, says one way to insure low and moderate-income housing is through "capture of land increment:" buying land as it comes around.

"This is a very, very exploratory beginning," Mayor Bleiman said. "But it is one way to get as much land as possible using Federal funds—Section 8 of the new housing law. A land bank is one way."

Public comment on the new site-plan ordinance so impressed acting planning board chairman Norman Williams that he said it was "rare to have this kind of input".

Input came from Borough-Township Environmental Commissions represented by Philip Minis, chairman of the Township's, and Denise Reed, chairman of the Borough's, from Township Committee member Duffy Hutter and Richard Henkel, of the Township's venerable site-plan review board.

The Township has had a special site-plan review board for almost six years. The Borough has not had such an ordinance. Questions about the planning of sites have been handled by the Planning Board as a whole.

The new ordinance, which would be about the same for both municipalities, would provide 14 developmental criteria for developers to follow: traffic, utilities, waste, drainage, landscaping etc.

The "heavily revised" ordinance is almost a new draft, compared to one passed last fall by Township Committee and effective July 1. The Borough has delayed its own action.

"We felt strongly that some criteria were oppressive for smaller property-owners," explained Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley. Two changes were made, he said: small applications no longer need full planning board action, and for major developments the site-plan review board can require additional detail only where necessary.

Mr. Minis and Mrs. Reed had some questions. They were chiefly concerned about broadening membership on the board to include other kinds of experts than architects and engineers; they wanted allocation of responsibility to make sure developers complied with site plan stipulations, and they wondered what would happen if work on a project were abandoned?

This drew hollow laughter from Borough members of the Planning Board. The uncomplete office building on Nassau and Markham Road came immediately to mind.

Regarding non-compliance, Planning Board member Margen Penick remarked that planting required of the carwash on Alexander Street and the Rusty Scupper next door, had never been done.

"Controls are a concern, and they bother us," said Mr. Hankel, "but what are the legalities of control?" Township site plan members he said, work through the Township engineer. Enforcing is the job of the municipality, Mayor Cawley stated.

Developer Benedict Yedlin, due later on the program, said he was uneasy because there was no time limit in which the site plan board had to finish its work.

"In 25 years, with different people in office, $50 under the table would speed the work along," said board member William Walker glumly. But board counsel William Miller said the Township had had no complaints. Its ordinance has no time limit.

The ordinance is a "tool without teeth," said Mrs. Hutter, "We have no power to follow through. We can withhold the occupancy permit, but that's after the damage has been done."

Citizens with information should be allowed to testify before the site board, she said, and concerned property-owners should be notified of board hearings. Stream dredgings and building in the flood plain should be forbidden, she advised.

"And I thought we were almost there!" sighed Mayor Bleiman. Board members will confer on suggested changes.

LEARNING COMMUNITY?

No Firm Decision. The ultimate fate of PHS' Learning Community was still uncertain this week following the unanimous school board decision last Tuesday that a study committee should be appointed.

The committee, said the board, should have representation from PHS' administration and staff, and parents and students from the Community. As soon as possible, the committee should answer questions raised by PHS Principal George Petrillo in his memorandum recommending dropping the Community.

Mr. Petrillo said this week it was "clearly understood" that the board would appoint the committee. But one board member said Superintendent Philip E. McPherson was supposed to make the appointments.

Questions of Learning Community cost, use of physical space and the low 8.2 student-teacher ratio are ones the school board wants answered.

STATEMENT DUE

From Springdale on Trotman. The Springdale Golf Club will have the matter of its rejection of Marvin Trotman as an applicant for membership on the agenda at its March meeting Saturday morning. It was discussed last Saturday at a special meeting of the board, but a statement replying to a charge of racism by the Joint Civil Rights Commission was deferred until after the meeting this weekend.

Joan E. Hill, the commission's executive director, said that no action will be taken against the club until its comments on rejection of Mr Trotman have been made public. "It's perfectly possible that they have a valid reason for their action," she declared, "but until we learn what it is, the assumption is that it's 'race'. 'We don't like him' isn't a valid reason."

Miss Hill reported that while it awaits the club's comments on rejection of Mr. Trotman, the first black to apply for membership in Springdale's six-plus decades on the Princeton scene, the Civil Rights Commission "has done its homework to see whether we have a case". In the absence of a valid reason for the club's action, "we have one," she declared.

James M. Litvak, a member of Springdale's board of governors and the club's treasurer, has said that "race was not a factor, but when you are dealing with race, I don't know how you can dispel that inference." At least one of the original five club members who sought admission for Mr. Trotman is also reported to have said that race did not enter into the vote against him.

Playhouse, a man ran up and grabbed her purse and fled toward Avalon Place. He was described as tall, 25 to 30, wearing a dark jacket and a knit hat.

The victim lost $30 and identification cards. Her purse was found the next day in hedges in front of a Birch Avenue home.

Friday afternoon, police received a call from an elderly Stanworth area resident who reported that two men had grabbed her handbag as she was walking on South Stanworth.

One was described as tall with an Afro and light brown leather coat. The other was shorter and wearing a blue jacket. Police said one of the two grabbed the victim's hand, hit her wrist and then snatched her purse. She lost an undetermined amount of cash and identification cards.

A mother and her two children were about to enter Princeton High School last Wednesday evening to see a basketball game when they were approached by three men who had jumped out of a car. According to police, one of the three carrying a coke bottle said, "Let's get this one!" He grabbed her shoulder bag and ran off.

Inside was a wallet containing $50, a check book and credit cards. The bag was found two days later behind one of the outbuildings near the high school, minus the wallet and check book. The victim was a resident of the Borough.

For Speeding. Six Princeton-area residents were fined Monday by Judge Philip Carchman in Borough Court for speeding.

They are Michael S. Kerney, 590 Great Road, $35; George C. Large, 980 Stuart Road, and Florence L. Graham, Moores-Mill Road, Pennington, both $18, and Michael Terzis, English Department, Princeton University, Raymond J. Clark, 66 Greenway Terrace, and Alfred H. Teger, 16 Merion Place, Lawrenceville, all $15.

THEFT REPORT

Stereo, Camera Stolen. A stereo receiver, which has been bolted to a shelf in the first-floor lounge of the Charter Club, Prospect Avenue, was stolen last week. Police report that a prying tool was left at the scene.

A 35mm camera and lens valued at $350 was taken last week from a dark room at Princeton Day School. It was reported missing by Claire Treves, 9 Adams Drive.

A pocket calculator and some checks on the Princeton Bank and Trust were stolen Friday from a student's room in Cuyler Hall on the university campus. Police said the door was unlocked.

An office employee at Moffet Lab on the university campus lost $10 and credit cards last week when her wallet was stolen. The victim had left her purse on her desk to go to a rest room, police said. When she returned, her wallet was missing from her purse.

Conrad Guthrodt, 131 Mountain Avenue, listed the theft of a $25 hubcap and $2 domelight from his unlocked car, parked at the Princeton Shopping Center.

The theft took place between 9:30 and 11 Friday morning.

$153 IS STOLEN

From Doctor's Office. The office of Dr. Jose C. Julio, 272 Nassau Street, was entered this week by a thief who forced a door to get inside and steal $153.

Police received a report of the theft Monday morning. Sgt. Ralph Procaccino investigated.

Township police report the entry of homes on Dorann Avenue and State Road.

The home of Frits Dumpel, 25 Dorann, was entered between 8:45 and 11:45 Friday morning and two first-floor rooms and a master bedroom were ransacked. Aside from some miscellaneous jewelry, police report it is unknown, as yet, what is missing.

A screen was removed from a window to enter the cellar. Det. Frank Boccanfuso is investigating.

A pane of glass was broken to reach in and unlock the rear door of the home of George Cramer, 654 State Road.

A master bedroom was ransacked but police report that they do not have a list of what was taken. Det. Norman Servis is continuing the initial investigation by Sgt. David Potts.

APPLY BY MARCH 19

For PHC Housing. Almost 250 pre-applications have been received so far for the low and middle-income apartments that will become available this year in Princeton Community Village.

This week, St. Paul's Church was added to the list of churches where applications can be picked up. Borough and Township halls, the library, the Borough Housing Authority and the YM-YWCA also have the blanks.

Applicants should fill out the forms and return them by March 19. This spring and summer, some of the 168 townhouse units with two, three and four bedrooms will be ready for occupancy. Next winter, the 71 one-bedroom apartments in the mid-rise building will be ready, and PCH officers advise applying now for those units, even though occupancy is far off.

How About Some Green?

The wind-scrubbed blue
Of March's sky
Is Like a banner
Waving high

That breezy blue we've had for the past few days was ushered in by some very unseasonably cold weather. Daily temperatures since Sunday have been averaging 6 to 8 degrees below normal.

There is, however, reason to believe that the milder weather expected to arrive by Thursday will be the forerunner of spring. As a matter of fact, the long-range forecast for March calls for mean temperatures to run somewhat above the normal of 41.

Showers about Friday, the man says, with a generally sunny weekend in store.

Federal Grant of $162,500 to Permit Development of North Side Of Community Park, Including Lake and Amphitheater Seating 250

In a meeting largely devoted to a re-hash of bike path issues, Township Committee also announced on Monday night that the federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR) has authorized $162,500 for the landscape development of the north side of Community Park, adjacent to State Road.

The money represents the matching federal share of a $300,000 project (plus contingencies) that the Township and Borough proposed to BOR last summer. Plans for the project, whose remaining cost will be borne 65 percent by the Township and 35 percent by the Borough, must be certified by the Township engineer before June 15.

Construction bids for the project will then be opened by July 15, meaning that groundbreaking should occur by late summer. Conceivably, then, park grounds would be ready in time for late fall picnics after paddle tennis, or.

The BOR grant covers land improvement for some 20 acres, including the creation of a lake, a drainage pond, the transplanting of trees, and the construction of a parking lot and a bike path. The only structures to be built will be toilets and an outdoor 250-seat amphitheater.

One-Speed Ahead on Bikes. Meanwhile, the 30 people attending the meeting had come to discuss bike paths, particularly the route planned along the Great Road serving Stuart School and PDS. They heard a lengthy, over-all view of bike path planning since 1970 into the distant future presented by Committeeman Abbot L. Moffat.

Mr. Moffat outlined the Committee's priorities for bike path development, as had been previously announced, and emphasized that these plans were contingent on BOR funding approval as well as a final Township go-ahead After audience questions and frequent comments by G. Victor Davis of The North Road, Mayor Bleiman indicated that the Committee would proceed to send the preliminary draft of the bike path plans to the BOR in the coming days, with few if any changes from its previous form

The plans establish a tentative list of priorities, although Township Administrator Joseph Nini said that the Committee views the six bike links as "one project, to be built all at once, unless BOR grants only partial funding" Only then will the priorities bear on the construction plans.

The six paths are Great Road from Westerly to Stuart School, Mercer Street from the Battlefield Park to Lovers Lane, Mercer Street from Quaker Road to Parkside Drive; the Great Road from the old Great Road to Ridgeview Road, Lovers Lane from Marquand Park to Mercer Street; and the Great Road from Ridgeview to Cherry Valley, in that order.

Safety vs. Cost. The arguments for and against these paths revolved, as in the past, around the safety of school children going to and from school, cost, location of the right of way, and recreational importance. The need to stimulate employment and the sharply decreasing cost of construction contracts (43 percent decrease for Mercer County on culvert work for bridges since 1973, according to Mr Moffat) were also arguments voiced in favor of the bike routes

One audience suggestion, regarding the possible narrowing of the Great Road to locate the path alongside it rather than on separate land, sparked interest from the Committee, which said it had the idea under study

Mayor Bleiman commented afterwards, "the real question is whether to raise this idea with the state", because of speed limit problems along the straightaway and the difficulty of clearing snow if butt curbs were to adjoin the Great Road

These and other final decisions on siting, such as the route along the property of John Winant, will await a preliminary indication from BOR that it wishes to fund the paths, Mr. Nini explained after the meeting.

Routine Business. In other action, the Committee accepted "with regret" the resignation of William Shellman, 45 McCosh Circle, from the Joint Historic Sites Committee, and voted unanimously to table until this Monday's budget meeting consideration of a zoning amendment involving site plan review.

Lastly, the Committee announced that $16,000 has been appropriated for the resurfacing of Township roads for 1975 Of this, $14,227 sum will be paid by the state on a 90-10 basis

TWO GENERAL ALARMS

In Borough Friday. General alarms were sounded for two fires Friday in the Borough. The first was sounded at 2:30 in the morning for a fire at the home of Ms. Elizabeth McEwen, 161 John Street. Police report that it was confined to a blanket which had been ignited by a cigarette.

Township Ptl. David Cromwell arrived first in the area, saw flames through a bath room window and requested a general alarm. Ptl. Peter Hanley and Sgt. Robert Anderson responded for the Borough.

The day's second general alarm was sounded at 9:55 in the evening for a third-floor apartment at 19 Bank Street occupied by Carol Orr.

Police said that the fire was confined to a window frame which had been ignited by a window shade which had come in contact with a candle.

ONE DRIVER HURT

In 3-Car Collision. One driver was injured Saturday afternoon in a three-car collision at Valley Road and Jefferson.

Caroline W. Roth, 32, RD1, Hopewell, was taken to Princeton Medical Center for treatment after she complained of a pain in her head. According to police, her car was struck on the left side by a car driven by Irving Klothen, 52, 215 Mt. Lucas Road. The impact forced the Roth car into the left front of a car stopped at the Jefferson Road stop sign. That was operated by Isabelle E. Schoenfeld, 32, of Arlington, Mass.

Mr. Klothen was ticketed by Sgt. David Potts for failing to yield after stopping at a stop sign.

A Broomall, Pa., driver was treated at the Medical Center after her car struck an oncoming car Friday at 5:19 p.m. on Quaker Road near Mercer Road. Victoria A. Pantle, 22, sustained a severe laceration of the face.

Her car, police said, crossed 18 inches over the center line and struck the left front of a car driven by John Pukk, 41, of Hamilton Square. Ms. Pantle was charged with failure to keep right.

FINAL REPORT IN

On Medical Center Operations. The Princeton Medical Center has received the final report of an extensive study of its programs, finances, and management conducted last fall.

Made possible by a grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, this report named the Sheps Report for study group Chairman Dr Cecil G. Sheps—is the result of extensive consultation between study team experts and members of the Board of Trustees, clinical department chairmen, physicians and administrators from the Medical Center

Impetus for the study was generated by the Medical Center's financial problems. The Sheps Report cited the complex problems of the third-party payment system in the reimbursement of hospital costs. In particular the report focused on the operating deficit incurred by the retroactive reimbursement methods of Blue Cross and the time lag in renegotiating inadequate per diem repayment rates.

The report praised the Medical Center for its "progressive" approach to total community health care, referring specifically to the followup and related care functions of the Merwick and Princeton House Units and the Department of Community Health Services.

This total care concept was cited as an attraction for the intern and resident physicians from the New Jersey College of Medicine and Dentistry who comprise the Medical Center's house staff under the terms of its affiliation with Rutgers Medical School as a teaching hospital

Why the Story of Van Dusens' Suicide Pact Appeared in The Times Before Town Topics

The New York Times last week published details of a story that had been known for some weeks to a great many residents of Princeton, and to TOWN TOPICS. On January 29, Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen and his wife, Elizabeth, of 27 Armour Road, entered into a suicide pact, both swallowing an overdose of sleeping pills.

Mrs. Van Dusen died, but her husband vomited the pills he had taken and lived until February 12. His death occurred at the Carrier Clinic in Belle Mead, and was initially attributed to a heart ailment, but the county medical examiner has listed his death also as having occurred by his own hand.

The Times reported in its story that Derek Van Dusen, one of their three surviving sons, confirmed the contents of a note Dr. Van Dusen had typed the night before the couple was found. He said that in 1967, his father had written a private memorandum in which he supported an active form of euthanasia--the decision to take one's own life.

The note reportedly said that while Dr. and Mrs. Van Dusen had enjoyed happy lives, deteriorating health no longer permitted them "to do what we want to do." They said that their condition was becoming "increasingly weak," and that they "were not afraid to die."

Mrs. Van Dusen, 80, had been suffering increasingly from arthritis, and was lame. Her husband, 77, had undergone a severe stroke five years ago, the effect limiting his physical activity and preventing him from normal speech.

In May of last year, the Van Dusens very nearly lost their lives in a fire. Rescuers found him almost helpless on the floor of his smoke-filled bedroom and were able to pull him through a window. Mrs. Van Dusen, who had managed to telephone the alarm, and her husband were both treated at the Princeton Medical Center for smoke and heat inhalation. The fire was attributed to an electric blanket.

Dr. Van Dusen, who served as president of Union Theological Seminary in New York from 1945 until his retirement in 1963, was a forceful speaker, a man who greatly enjoyed life and was, until the stroke which partially paralyzed him, possessed of boundless energy. The Rev. Dr. Roger Shinn, now president of Union Seminary, said of him, "I have never seen anybody physically or mentally less cut out to be an invalid."

Dr. Shinn said of his predecessor, "He had a very strong belief in immortality. His attitude was that, when your time is up, when you have lived out the possibilities, it is all right to stop, and to go on to the next life."

The note that Dr. Van Dusen prepared on January 29 ended with a prayer.

"O Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us. O Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world, grant us thy peace."

TOWN TOPICS did not attempt to publish the story of the suicide pact because it felt that an elderly couple beset with the infirmities of old age should have the right to die as they chose--without the glare of publicity. Had this newspaper been the first to do so, the end result would have been the same: a front page story in the New York Times and news breaks on network radio throughout the nation.

In a community which still clings to the belief that some of the benefits of small town life may be had for the asking, it is occasionally better to omit news that, elsewhere, may be fit to print.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by Mel Allas, Reg. Pharm

Coronary heart disease is a result of changes in the arteries which supply blood to the heart, and of course, an interference in general with the flow of blood. The heart muscle, like any other muscle of the body, needs its supply of food and oxygen, and must also excrete waste products. It can only do all of this through the flow of blood to the actural muscle walls. Failure of the heart muscle to be supplied adequately can create coronary heart disease.

all point to the need for an expanded "dinky" service, the report declares.

The West Windsor Parking Authority recently tagged the 417 cars in its new lot: 24.5 percent are from Princeton; 18.2 percent from East Windsor; 17.4 percent from West Windsor; 10 percent each from Lawrence and Hamilton and slightly over 18 percent from "others." There are 200 names on the waiting list for that lot.

These figures have been adjusted with an eye to a commuting population. For example, Princeton's present 26,000 population is usually projected to 40,000 in 20 years; however, 35 percent of the expected housing units are for low income families who would probably not have a commuter. Hence the "9,000" figure for Princeton: 65 percent of the projected 14,000 population increase.

At the moment, the two Princetons, East and West Windsor and Plainsboro are under building moratoriums. But the report warns that when these are lifted, the lid will blow.

Already real-estate agents are using the railroad as a selling device. The Station Access report points to Plainsboro's Princeton Meadows development whose brochure reads "The place to commute from: just hop on a train at Princeton Junction."

But there is no way to get from Princeton Meadows to Princeton Junction except by driving, and there is no place to park at the Junction once the commuter is there. And the Plainsboro planner, William Roach, has estimated a leap in population from the present 5,000 to 25-30,000 by the year 2000---only 25 years away.

Then, there is Princeton University. With its 4,400-member staff, it's the largest employer in Mercer County. Its employees, many of whom live in the area, and its 5,800 students have no public transportation for the trip to the Junction except taxis. John P. Moran, vice-president for facilities at the University, remarked on these statistics in a letter to the U.S.R.A.

The University's major commercial-research development, 'Forrestal Center' is a factor, too. The dinky line has "great potential," Mr. Moran pointed out, "in linking Princeton, West Windsor and Plainsboro."

An unused fifth track, now parallel to the main Penn Central tracks from Princeton Junction to Plainsboro, could serve as a "logical extension" of branch line service from West Windsor to Plainsboro, where the Forrestal development will be, he says. The estimated population of the Forrestal Center, with its Planned Unit Development concept, is 10,000.

Turning backward for a moment, the Station Access people have Mercer County Planning Board figures showing 109 percent increase in ten years in main line traffic from Princeton Junction to New York, and 89.7 percent increase in traffic going to Philadelphia. The ten-year period was 1961-71. The figures suggests the report, are even higher today.

Helen Chase is head of the Station Access Committee, which assembled the 47-page report.

The Sheps Report described the role of the Medical Center as being "all things to all people in the area that it serves" by "undertaking the responsibility of seeing to it that everything that they need is somehow provided." To achieve this goal the consultants recommended that the Medical Center increase its linkages with outlying communities.

The total involvement of all communities in the 80-90,000-person service area on all levels of Medical Center activity is mandatory, per the report, to the continued support of the institution. Its ability to provide for the healthcare needs of the 80 percent of total patients who live outside Princeton Borough and Princeton Township, as well as for Princeton residents, hinges on effective planning with local sources.

The Princeton Community alone is inadequate to support services on the scale of those offered by The Medical Center, and the Center must turn to its broader patient base for the means to continue what the report called the institution's "on-going primary mission": the provision of continuous primary and comprehensive care for the whole service area.

By action of the Board of Trustees the Sheps report was immediately forwraded to the Master Planning Committee, the Executive Committee and the Departmental Chairmen Committee of the Medical and Dental Staff to issue recommendations to the Board. An extraordinary session of the Board of Trustees will be convened in March to receive the Sheps Report recommendations and to adopt action proposals.

Lucy Mackenzie

FOR THE ASSEMBLY

Princetonian a Candidate. "I care about the legislature and want it to be better than it is," declared Lucy Mackenzie this week as she announced her candidacy for the New Jersey Assembly. A Democrat, a resident of 369 Dodds Lane, Mrs. Mackenzie will run for one of the two seats in the 14th legislative district, which includes Princeton.

Last Saturday, Mrs. Mackenzie was honored at the 28th anniversary banquet of the New Jersey chapter of Americans for Democratic Action for "distinguished achievement in improving the quality of life for New Jersey farm-workers." She was an organizer of the Coalition for the Rights of N.J. Farm-workers, which has been responsible for drafting four bills relating to farm workers.

"I have learned a great deal about the politics and procedures of the legislature," Mrs. Mackenzie says, "I have testified for and against various bills in committees and at public hearings, both as lobbyist for the League of Women Voters and as Coalition co-chairman. I have learned where to get information and how to do research."

For three years, she was editor of the League's Legislative Roll Call, a review of the most important bills passed by both houses each legislative week, and the votes on them. A lobbyist for the League for three years and voting rights chairman for the Princeton League, she has resigned both positions in order to run.

Mrs. Mackenzie is a member of the Princeton Community Democratic Organization, a board member of Family Service and the Cranbury Migrant Clothing Store and a member of the advisory board of the Middlesex Migrant Health Program. She lists her interests as law, labor law, legislative procedures, the open-meetings bill and preservation of farm land.

Mrs. Mackenzie's husband is Dr. James W. Mackenzie, chairman of the department of surgery at Rutgers Medical School. The Mackenzies have one child, Doug, 13 years old.

LETTER RELEASED

With "Charges." PHS Principal George Petrillo released this week the text of a letter signed by four parents relating, in the words of the letter "recent events that cast some doubt upon the qualifications of the high school principal."

The letter was apparently misplaced at last week's school board meeting when a briefer but similar letter, signed by 13 parents, was presented to the board and read at the public meeting.

"I would like to accede to the request of the small group of citizens by making public these letters that have raised a shadow of suspicion on my personal integrity," Mr. Petrillo said, in a covering letter to the press, "I do so simply to clear my reputation--to show the Princeton Community the reasons my personal ethics were questioned by 13 people."

The newly-found letter, in rough-draft form, asks the board "as elected officials" to "weigh all factors in making a decision (on Mr. Petrillo's tenure) which will have a possible thirty-year impact on the town of Princeton We have been informed that Mr. Petrillo:

"1. Called staff on 2-7 to ask for a 'hold' on recruitment information until he had a chance to speak to staff."

"2. Met on 2-10 at request of staff. Petrillo said: 'I have decided to discontinue the Learning Community for next year and will forward that decision to (Superintendent) McPherson's Staff was told they would receive the rationale memo to McPherson by 2-13."

"3. 2-13 no memo Kauffman (student) and Sinding (staff) met with Petrillo---date of memo put off until 'possibly' the week of 2-17."

"We believe that this represents recent evidence of poor judgment and less than candid behavior."

The letter is signed by Louis R. Lavine, Lois Shepetin, Paul B. Diederich and R. Frisch.

"In summary," Mr. Petrillo concluded in his statement, "they (my personal ethics) were questioned because of a decision I made concerning the Learning Community---a decision that not only is my right to make, but indeed my responsibility."

Commenting on the parents' letter, he said he had never promised the memo by a certain date. It went to Superintendent McPherson on February 18, was read to the Learning Community staff on the 19th, a typographical error corrected and the memo completed on the 21st.

"The spectre of suspicion is still there," he added, "Colleagues throughout Mercer County are telephoning me to ask what the charges are."

He has been in touch with a lawyer about possible court action but has so far taken none. He said he was releasing the letter's text with the approval of the entire school board.

"This is a pathetic, eleventh-hour attempt to sway the board on my tenure. It's a terrible way to proceed."

PLAYERS PLAN COMEDY

For Six-Night Run. The Irish playwright Brian Friel will be represented in a Princeton theatre for the third time in less than a year when the Princeton Community Players produce the comedy, "Philadelphia, Here I Come," at 171 Broadmead for six performances opening next Friday, March 14. Coming on the heels of Theatre Intime's recent "Lovers" and "The Loves of Cass McGuire" presented by the Players last spring, this is something of a record for "mosts" by a single author.

Besides being funny and unashamedly sentimental, "Philadelphia, Here I Come" is novel in using two actors to play the main character. Gareth O'Donnell is preparing to leave his native village of Ballybeg in County Donegal to take a job in Philadelphia, U.S.A. One actor portrays the "public" Gareth, whom everyone sees and talks with; another, close by, is the "private" Gareth, who speaks the young man's inner thoughts, and who is visible to no one on the stage.

The current production is directed by Leo Cohen, known for many Players offerings he has staged, including "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running," "Black Comedy" and "The Madwoman of Chaillot." Starring as Public and Private Gareth are Ed Watkinson and Roger Lipman, both of whom appeared in the Players' production of "A Thousand Clowns" in January. The set design is by Dirck Dimock.

The play will be shown on March 14, 15, 16, 21, 22 and 23, at 8:30. The March 15 and 16 performances have been sold to the Women's Division of the Princeton Jewish Center as benefits for its Youth Lounge Fund.

Ticket-holders for the opening on March 14 may attend an after-theatre reception at which the cast and stage crew will be present. Reservations for March 15 and 16 may be made by calling 921-8012 or 924-0826; for other performances, call 924-5976.

. . . .AND WAIT'LL THEY THROW THAT PIE! Clowns shown here are, left to right—well, uh—let's just say they're in the cast of "Clown Face and Comedy," an original play by the advanced teen class at Creative Theatre Unlimited. Pies will fly and fire-alarms will sound when the play is given this weekend. (We were just kidding: we knew all along it was, top row, left to right: Carolyn Painney, Jon Tenney, Peter Dolotte, Ben Dubrovsky, Hilary Pierce and bottom row, Nandy Florey, Lise Durezo, Claire Lewis and Laurie Powsner.)

STOP THAT PIE!

Teens Write Play. A bakery shop pie fight, with everybody in town taking part in the heave and throw, is part of "Clown Face and Comedy," a play written by the advanced teenage class at Creative Theatre Unlimited.

It will be given this Friday at 7:30 p.m. and this Saturday at 2 p.m. at Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street. The play is a collection of skits and movement pieces which grew from the class' study of mime, melodrama and vaudeville.

"Clown Face and Comedy" is open to the public without charge. Those in the cast are Peter Dolotta, Ben Drubrovsky, Dan Durazo, Lisa Durazo, Nandy Florey, Claire Lewis, Carolyn Phinney, Hilary Pierce, Laurie Powsner, Katie Sanborn, Paul Silherman, Jon Tenney and Jennifer Van Dyck.

ANOTHER ALTMAN

"Thieves Like Us," Director Robert Altman's 1973 film, "Thieves Like Us," will be given two showings at McCarter next Monday in the "Movies at McCarter" series. The screenings, at 7 and 9:15, will be the first for this film in the Princeton area. Tickets may be bought at the box-office from 10 a.m. Monday.

"Thieves Like Us" has a pair of doomed lovers (Keith Carradine and Shelly Duvall) in a film about people who make a living, as did Bonnie and Clyde, by robbing banks in the southwest. The New York Times called this film "unquestionably Altman's most accessible, most likeable movie, and perhaps also his best."

Altman is the director who did "M.A.S.H.," "The Long Goodbye," and "California Split."

ROCK IN THE SPRING

Browne, Watson, Bromberg. McCarter's spring rock series will rock along with Jackson Browne, Doc Watson and David Bromberg.

Browne, singer and songwriter, will be in Dillon Gym on Friday, March 14 at 8, accompanied by the folk-jazz singer Phoebe Snow.

Doc Watson, 51 years old and already regarded as a legend, will be in Alexander Hall on Saturday, March 22 at 8 p.m. Blind since birth, Watson is regarded by many colleagues as the best acoustic guitar player alive today. He is credited with elevating the acoustic guitar to the level of lead instrument, much as Segovia brought the classical guitar into prominance. Before Watson's time, the acoustic guitar was chiefly used as rhythm support for bluegrass banjo, mandolin or fiddle. Watson's son Merle and the members of the Frosty Morn band, will be with Doc in Alexander Hall.

On Saturday, April 5, David Bromberg and his band will be in Alexander Hall for an 8 p.m. concert.

AT INTIME

Two One-Acters. If characters are allowed to control the flow of the play, what could happen? Playwright Alexander Blok has explored the possibility in "The Puppet Show," one of the two short plays to be presented this weekend by Theatre Intime. The plays will be given one weekend only: this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8:30 in Murray Theatre and Sunday at 2:30 and 8.

The second play, "Ubu the Cuckold," by Alfred Jarry, is described by Intime as "a hard-hitting and outrageous comedy." It offers a bourgeois tyrant, Pa Ubu, who takes over the house of a celebrated professor and treats the audience to a series of comic episodes.

Kimberly Myers, Intime's executive director, is directing her own translation of "The Puppet Show." Stephen Hellmuth is the director of "Ubu." Actors appearing on the Murray Theatre stage will be Mark Schaeffer, Jim Millstein, Jamie Horton, Madia Benabid, Geoff Rich, Douglas Moltz and Lisa Carnochan. Robert Davidson has composed music and Florence Brown, choreography. Bill Taylor of the McCarter staff has designed the costumes. Allison Mankin is stage manager.

DEBUT NEXT FRIDAY

For Ballet Concertante. Ballet Concertante, New Jersey's only professional ballet touring company will make its debut Friday, March 15 at 8 p.m. in the Mercer County Community College theatre at the college's West Windsor campus.

Originated by Trenton's Phyllis Papa as an offshoot of the West Jersey Ballet Company, the Concertante will perform Promenade, Abyss, La Familia and Encounters. Hotel will feature the entire West Jersey Ballet Company in a return by popular demand of the comedy ballet.

Special guest artists for this performance will include Phillip Carman, Janice Michaelson and Douglas Bentz.

PLAYHOUSE

Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore. Add "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" to the growing list of credible, rounded and realistic portraits of contemporary women now filling the screens.

Martin Scorsese has directed a wry, exuberant and thoroughly liberating film, and Ellen Burstyn gives a standout performance as a woman suddenly confronted with independence but only half sure that she wants to be on her own. The realities of "Alice" cut close to the bone but the film is steadfastly human and almost continually exhilirating.

As a little girl, Alice swore that some day she would be a better singer than Alice Faye. Twenty-two years later, however, she finds herself married to a macho truck driver and weathering his coarseness by swapping sarcasms with her precocious 11-year old son. Suddenly, her husband is killed in a crash, and Alice, stunned to realize how dependent she really was on him, decides to pull up stakes and finally launch the singing career that her marriage nipped in the bud.

The rest of the film is peopled with an astounding range of characters that touch on Alice's life—all of them uniformly vital, high-spirited and creditable. Harvey Keitel is superb and jarringly intense as a cocky, cowboy ladykiller; Diane Ladd is a foul-mouthed but golden-hearted waitress and Kris Kristofferson, a divorced farmer who agrees to give her both a career and marriage. But the core of the film remains the unique relationship between Alice and her son, as each go through the difficult process of redefining themselves. Burstyn's tremendous warmth and range—she reportedly freely influenced the writing of "Alice"—turns the film into a joyous experience.

PRINCE

Harry and Tonto. This amiable, bittersweet comedy about an old man, excellently played by Art Carney and his cat, Tonto, and their cross-country odyssey contains some funny and immensely human scenes, but for some reason it never caught on.

The fault lay not with the critics. Both Vincent Canby of "The New York Times" and Archer Winsten of "The New York Post" had it on their lists of the best 10 of 1974. So did the National Board of Review. Frances Taylor of the Long Island Press went even further: she listed it as the year's Best Picture.

Now that the film has received Academy Award nominations it is being re-issued at the Prince, and those who missed it the first time are in the theatre's debt. The film is eminently likeable--and ignore the R rating. It was awarded on the basis of a single four-letter word used in an extremely funny context.

Few films have dealt with the elderly to such an extent and with such originality. Harry is seen as a fiercely independent and noble old man, bearing his widowed loneliness with surface cheer, sharing stories with neighborhood friends and philosophical monologues with his faithful cat. When he is evicted from his apartment, Harry pulls up stakes.

It is the characters he meets on his travels--more than his relationship with Tonto--that give the film the spark of life. Heading toward Chicago, he has a brief reunion with his oft-married daughter (Ellen Burstyn of the acclaimed "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore) and picks up a 15-year old hitchhiking runaway.

In Las Vegas, Harry is sexually recharged by a golden-hearted hooker, gets drunk, lands in jail where he meets an unlicensed Indian medicine man. By the time he reaches California, he is a changed man.

IT'S NEW To Us

25TH YEAR MARKED

By Henry R. Kalmus. This year Henry R. Kalmus is marking a quarter of a century of service to Princeton area residents. He began his career here by making the trip from Philadelphia to do the more complicated watch repairs for Vincent Ferrara, The Watch Shop's former owner.

This original shop was located in a tiny Nassau Street store approximately 7 x 11 feet furnished with only one showcase, a chair, worktable and bench. Although its main function was watch repairs, there was also a small stock of watches and jewelry.

Two years later, in 1952, Mr. Kalmus was able to buy the business and came to Princeton on a full-time basis. Since then the shop has grown with a move around the corner onto Chambers Street, several expansions and an increased stock.

However in spite of expansions, watches remain a major part of the business. Mr. Kalmus who began his watchmaker's apprenticeship at age 13, is able to make every imaginable repair, just so long as the watch has a pin lever construction. He does not repair Timexes or many fashion watches which are made from master plates and so have a limited life.

JEWELER AT WORK: With his jeweler's glass, agile hands and small tools, Henry R. Kalmus of The Watch Shop is often seen cleaning and repairing the more than 100 tiny parts contained in many watches.

He has never recommended yearly cleanings, saying, "I was taught to wait until it gives you trouble." Some women's watches are so small they stop at the first sign of dirt while others can go on for years. The situation varies with the owner's activity, and with the exception of large pocket watches which can wear out before they break, Mr. Kalmus feels a waiting policy is best.

Cleaning costs start at $12 for an ordinary watch, but the price increases for watches that self wind, have automatic calendars or come with alarms. And, at the other end, the charge for some chronographs is about $40. However, these prices do include a year's guarantee.

400 Jeweled Watches. The stock of new watches is incredible--over 400 jeweled watches and another 150 Timex ones. These include the moderately priced Caravelle and Jubilee lines by Bulova and Longines-Wittanauer respectively, starting at about $15. Quartz watches guaranteed accurate, special skin-divers' watches tested to a depth of 800 feet; and several fashion ones.

Specific watches we saw included a man's Bulova Accutron with a woven silver metal band and round face, $110, a white gold-filled Seiko watch with a square linked bracelet and square green face, $85; and the ultimate Quartz watch by Croton which gives the digital time, date and seconds at the push of a button. There is also a full line of Speidel, Seiko and leather watchbands.

The rest of the shop is devoted to a wide and extremely reasonably priced line of jewelry. Representative of this are the rows of 14k gold pierced earrings -- small coral roses, cameos, gold hoops, turquoise dots, enameled ladybugs and many more, $12 to about $25.

We particularly noticed an appealing textured 14k gold scotty dog pin with ruby eyes and a sapphire collar, $70. Other 14k gold jewelry includes choker necklaces in several different links (also sterling and gold filled ones), a diamond-studded starfish tie tac, and several lovely opal rings - both solitaires and clusters, $20 to $210.

The price of gold has so risen during the past few years that many items are gold filled. As an example, Mr. Kalmus mentioned some Wittanauer watches with a 14k case and gold-filled band. A solid gold watch costs at least $300, whereas an excellent gold-filled one is in the $100 range.

The same is true with the jewelry where we saw gold-filled lockets, crosses, necklaces and bracelets. We noticed several very pretty pendants such as a silhouette cameo of 14k gold overlay, $26.50, and an enameled silver dollar on a gold-filled chain, $45.

The Watch Shop also has cufflinks, rings, keychains and pen knives for man; many delightful charms in sterling or 14k gold; and Speidel ID bracelets which Mr. Kalmus can engrave.

Located at 6½ Chambers Street, The Watch Shop is open Monday to Friday from 10 to 6, Saturday from 10 to 5.

THE HAND-MADE TOUCH

At the Clothes Line. While the fashion world affects all aspects of the retail trade including children's clothing, it is refreshing to know that some styles never seem to disappear. Bishop-style smocked dresses, boys shortalls, french aprons and other well-loved looks can still be found at The Clothes Line.

This children's store, specializing in young sizes (infants to about 6), is also extremely receptive to hand-made touches. Dresses are hand-smocked, the Calliope line is sewn at home, and you can order delightful toy bags and sweaters embroidered with flowers or your child's name.

For Spring Calliope has a jumper in blue and white ticking set off by a red bandana print short-sleeved blouse. This same style with buttons down the back and an empire waist also comes in a patchwork of calico prints with a solid red blouse, toddler sizes 2-6.

As they start at size one, the smallest little girl can wear smocked dresses, and with their huge hems and permanent press fabric, they seem to last forever. The bishop-style with its smocked yoke and raglan sleeves is here in an old-fashioned wallpaper stripe of delicate blue flowers or in a pink gingham smocked with green and a deeper pink.

Although the bishop-style stops at size 5, the dresses with a smocked bodice and set-in sleeves go to size 6. A particularly pretty one has red and white smocking on a soft plaid of blue, green, red and yellow. Many of the same fabrics are in the infant sizes, but here you'll also find solid pastels.

Another line of children's clothing we always find at The Clothes Line is the Grace Co. With its delightfully appliqued dresses and shortalls, brother and sister can be look-alikes. This year there is a red bandana patchwork print with a scarecrow applique or a bright blue fabric covered with small white mice and appliqued with a larger red mouse (the girl's dress also has a piece of swiss cheese.)

If you know a toddler who is going south or if you just want to think summer, there is a cute white halter sunsuit printed with small red tomatoes or for the infants a pastel gingham french apron with appliqued flowers. Both have bloomers and the sunsuit has a ruffled hem.

For boys we saw yellow seersucker overalls printed with little moppets playing hopscotch and other games, brushed denim work overalls which The Clothes Line says are always a good seller, and red bib-front shorts with a white bicycle print.

The nightgowns go to size 10 and they are pretty enough to double as summer long dresses. The prettiest one of all is a pale blue empire gown with ruffled hem, floral buttons and wide lace trim down the front and across the shoulders.

The prices here range from $6 to $14 for the shortalls and in general about $15 for the dresses. The Clothes Line, located at 53 Palmer Square West, is open Monday through Friday from 9 to 5 and on Saturdays from 9 to 4.

"200 CLUB' EXPLAINED

At Rotary Meeting. Before a packed meeting of the Rotary Club in the Prince William Room at the Nassau Inn Tuesday, the concept and mechanics of the 200 Club was explained by Cory Kammler, a public affairs counselor and former Princeton businessman, and Col. Eugene Olaft, recently appointed head of the N.J. State Police.

The 200 Club is a national organization started in 1953 in Detroit. Presently there are 53 clubs in 17 states including six in New Jersey, which places it second to Michigan.

Its members range from professional people and businessmen to laborers, skilled and unskilled. Each member contributes $200. The aim is to provide immediate financial aid to widows and children of police officers and volonteer firemen killed in the line of duty. Each county in which a club exists takes care of its own.

In the case of a State Trooper, the clubs in New Jersey—they are located in Essex, Union, Somerset, Morris, Middlesex, Ocean and Monmouth Counties—pool their resources. Said Mr. Kammler, who founded the Somerset club in 1970, "$2,000 is immediately given to the widow." Then the survivors are visited. The need is discussed.

The family of a slain trooper has received as much as $18,500 through the 200 Clubs, Mr Kammler reported. In two trooper deaths last year, one family received $11,600.

"We care for those guys who care for us," he said. "They're putting their lives on the line for us 24 hours a day; we want to show that we care back. We owe them something.

"This business of calling police pigs is over." Mr. Kammler said that the 200 Club was one way of showing one's appreciation the sacrifices that police and firemen make. "When you see a guy wearing a '200' pin in his lapel, you know he cares," he said.

MORE ON SEWERS

Hopewell Borough's Delay. A new sewer service agreement ordinance will be introduced by Borough Council this Thursday at a special Council meeting. Public hearing date has not yet been set.

The new ordinance, lining up the Borough in a service agreement with the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority, is required because Hopewell Borough is now out of the picture. The present ordinance includes Hopewell Borough. Both measures exclude Hopewell Township.

"The Feds are ready with the money," said Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley this week, "there's no reason to wait. Hopewell's own engineering plans aren't very far along. They've been using delay as a lever to push the state on the question of money for their collector system, but I expect they'll get the money."

Hopewell Borough can now put off making a decision about entering the service agreement until 60 days after acceptance of an environmental study now under way.

"ALL YOU CAN EAT"

At Fireman's Dinner. The Griggstown Volunteer Fire Company will hold its spring "all you can eat" Pig Roast Dinner on Saturday, March 15, at the firehoose on Canal Road from 5 to 8.

Admission is $4; children under 10, $1.50.

The heyday of the Nassau Inn, (formerly the College Inn and located at 52 Nassau Street,) was during the proprietorship of John Joline (1812-1835), "a most jovial host who could tell a good story and sing a good song."

Four stagecoach companies ran stages between New York and Philadelphia and the elegant coaches drawn by high spirited horses all brought guests to Nassau Inn.

College social activities centered around "Joline's" and the big event was the college commencement ball, held in the Presbyterian Church each September until 1844. People came from all over, many with no interest whatever in the college. The fact that Election Day was only a few weeks off made it a great occasion for politicians "whose soap-box speeches drew rowdy crowds into the village streets."

"Country folk came simply for amusement and to see the sights. Eating and drinking, dancing and fiddling, playing for pennies and testing the speed of their horses was the amusement of most of those assembled. Stockton Street was used as a race course," and the commencement exercises were interrupted by the noise and rowdyism outside, where booths and wagons were peddling food and liquor.

By 1844 the condition was unbearable. Commencement was changed to the month of June and the political attraction of the gathering was lost and it was possible to center interest on the beauty of the graduation ceremony.

School Issues Inflammatory.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

As a parent and as a teacher who since 1955 has worked at least briefly in every public school in Princeton, I feel morally obliged not to keep silent on several of the inflammatory issues now before the Board of Education.

1. I am in favor of having a black principal at the Middle School. However, educational and disciplinary conditions at the Middle School, with the exception of some areas where superior teaching has created islands of excellence, are a valid subject for concern.

2. Princeton is fortunate in having at Riverside School a highly intelligent and efficient black principal who is sensitive to the needs of all. In her school, diversity flourishes in interesting and constructive ways.

3. Many previously "hip" educators here and elsewhere are beginning to realize that the total freedom craved by many young adolescents is their own worst enemy. There is security in structure, and there is confidence to be gained through achievement. Yesterday's children who return at the age of 25 and ask why we didn't make them learn to read are to be pitied!

4. The issues at stake in the Learning Community question at the High School are more complex than most people seem to realize. I support Mr. Petrillo's decision to terminate the L.C. because: a) the same advantages are already available in the main building, although they need to be made known to all students and parents (independent study, unstructured time, special interest clubs, university courses, interdisciplinary work, etc.); b) to continue the "rap session" structure in the L.C., where the per-pupil expenditure is three times the amount spent on every other student at P.H.S., would be grossly unfair in a year where total staff at the high school must be reduced by 17, further deteriorating the pupil-teacher ratio; c) the disproportionate amount of money being spent on the L.C. could much better be spent on a large-scale program for students who now cause attendance problems because they do not have the basic skills needed to keep up academically; d) the charge that the L.C. has become "elitist" cannot realistically be opposed by the suggestion that it be "opened up" to all kinds of students, when it has always been open to all. In the early years when the L.C. was not "elite" there were many academic and personal disasters which resulted from an excess of free time in the hands of students not mature enough to direct themselves constructively; e) the pupil population of the L.C. has decreased annually despite the fact that it is the one program in the entire curriculum which has been allowed to solicit new members. This indicates growing disenchantment with what was initially heralded as a wonderful alternative.

5. The five signers of the note attacking Mr. Petrillo's integrity (in the foreclosing the Learning Community) have by implication unjustly libeled the first effective principal that P.H.S. has had in many years.

6. It is imperative that the new board and the superintendent and the principals develop some kind of working relationship immediately. This should be worked out in closed meetings, where personal animosities are not sarcastically flaunted before the whole community.

It is a good sign that the board is starting to look critically at the eucational value of what actually happens in the schools. However, they most learn to listen critically before interfering in educational programs.

Don't Cut Library Budget.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The following letter has been sent to Mayor Cawley and to Mayor Bleiman and to the members of Borough Council and of Township Committee.

Princeton's Joint Commission on Aging is acutely distressed over the current "belt tightening" budget for the Princeton Public Library. As our representative made known at the Library Budget Hearing, this is not a luxury service for the affluent few, but an essential resource which enhances the mental health of our older citizens by offering a host of invaluable services.

Although we wish to commend the Recreation Department for its assistance to the elderly, particularly for the recent appointment of a coordinator of activities for older people and women, we wish to point out that it is the Library, under Mr. Staples, which, among all municipal bodies, has consistently accepted suggestions for activities for senior citizens. It has accepted them with eager alacrity and with notable efficiency.

Reading, especially the reading of current books, keeps the mind alive, in addition, the warm, welcoming ambiance of the Library, as evidenced in a large variety of programs, keeps the spirit alive. Nothing is more vital to mental health than feeling wanted, feeling welcome. This experience is palpable at the Library programs for our older neighbors.

In the municipal cost-cutting, which we realize is essential, we hope that you will keep uppermost in your minds that those who are most hurt in this economic climate are the elderly. To jeopardize their one haven would be calamitous.

We would remind you that last year the community spent less than $3 per senior citizen. An equal number of children in the public schools were each allotted $2,200, and this figure does not take into account the amount spent on them by the Recreation Department and by other agencies and organizations.

It seems obvious where paring should take place.

CHANDLER WENTWORTH
Chairman,
Commission on Aging

ANTIQUE SHOW PLANNED

By Wellesley Club. The 16th Princeton Antiques Show, sponsored by the Central New Jersey Wellesley Club, will be held March 20 to 22 at the Princeton Day School.

Several new dealers will be represented among the 34 in the show. Collections will include oriental carpets, fine porcelains, prints and engravings, pottery and china, paintings, fine furniture, needlework, marine antiques, clocks, barometers, tools, antique quilts, paperweights, curios, toys and folk art. Periods range from Ancient Chinese to Victorian English and American.

Of special interest to collectors of modest means is that many collections include items with small price tags. Antique silver serving pieces, old hunting prints and well-preserved handmade valentines, for example, make fine and unusual gifts for less than one might expect.

A highlight of the show will be the Edith Friedman Barenholtz (Wellesley '35) Memorial Lecture, "Toys Through the Ages", by Serge Agadjanian. Mrs. Barenholtz was one of the founders of the Princeton Antiques Show.

Show is given for the benefit of Wellesley College. Part of the profits go to the college development fund as unrestricted gift, and part to the May Margaret Fine Scholarship Fund, established in 1949 to provide financial aid to Wellesley students from the Central New Jersey area. Contributions to these two funds to date total more than $65,000. Mrs. Fenn Stafford and Mrs. Everett B. Garretson are this year's co-chairmen.

The show will begin with a cocktail preview Wednesday evening the 19th from 6 to 9. This is a festive opportunity for an unhurried look at all exhibits or a private chat with exhibitors. Cocktails, hors d'oeuvres and piano music will accompany the festivities.

All patrons are invited to the preview without charge. Non-patrons wishing to attend may purchase tickets at the door for $7.50. Such tickets admit to the preview and one visit to the show. Patrons' tickets, entitling the bearer to unlimited visits to the show, may be purchased from Mrs. Hallett Johnson, Pretty Brook Road, for $10 each.

Regular admission is $2.50 at the door or $2 by mail from the Wellesley Club of Central New Jersey, 338 the Great Road. Children 7-12 years of age will be admitted for $1; children six and under will be admitted free.

Show hours are from noon to 10 Thursday and Friday and noon to 5 on Saturday. An a la carte luncheon will be served buffet style from noon to 2 Thursday and Friday, with a sandwich luncheon on Saturday during the same hours. Light snacks and refreshments will be offered daily from 3 to 5.

FARE INCREASE ASKED

By Penn Central. The Penn Central Transportation Company has moved to apply the same increases to interstate fares, between points in North Jersey and Penn Station, that it previously asked for fares within the state.

In December, Penn Central and other commuter lines in New Jersey were asked by the New Jersey Commuter Operating Agency to file for a 25 percent increase as the first step toward adjusting interstate and intrastate fares in the area. Filing with the Interstate Commerce Commission last week represents the second step. The interstate fare increase is scheduled to take effect March 27.

For commuters from Princeton Junction to Penn Station the present one-way fare is $3.15. It would rise to $3.95 under the proposed interstate fare increase. Monthly tickets would rise from $58 to $72 and 12-trip tickets from $16.50 to $20.75.

RECEPTION PLANNED

To Honor Eric Craig. An Eric Craig Recognition Reception will be held on Sunday at 2 in the Princeton Youth Center. The entire community is invited.

Mr. Craig and his wife, Minnie, have four children in the Princeton Regional School System, two girls and two boys. A carpenter employed by Princeton University, he is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Princeton Summer Camp, and an outdoor enthusiast.

The Black Caucus, which is sponsoring the occasion, points out that "As a School Board member, he developed the reputation for being brief and candid on School Board matters," adding, "Eric has set an example with his leadership and unselfish efforts in the interest of all school children. He will be missed."

GYM BECOMES A GARDEN: And the garden will provide the setting for antiques as well as tables for a luncheon, as Mrs. Henry S. Broad and Mrs. A. James Meigs make preparations for the annual Princeton Antiques Show. The setting is the PDS gym and the dates are March 20 - 22.

All About Consumer Affairs

Your County Division of Consumer Affairs is in a unique POSITION TO HELP YOU—the citizens of Mercer County.

Many consumer issues attract national attention, and several important laws have been legislated by the State of New Jersey for consumers. Yet, the actual work of helping individual consumers seems best when it is based on a smaller more regional form of government. We can see what's on people's minds, determine what complaints they have most often and direct our activities in these directions.

Any one can file a complaint with the County Division of Consumer Affairs. And it's easy to do. You can file a complaint in three ways:

1) you can write a letter to our office, explaining your problem. 2) You can phone us and we'll send you a complaint form to fill out and return, or we'll tell you exactly what written material we'll need to help you and 3) you can stop by our office any weekday between 8:30 and 4:30 and file your complaint in person or come to Borough Hall in Princeton on the second Monday of the month from 1:30 - 4:30 and file there.

We can best help you when you give us all the information we need for our investigation. So when you explain your complaint, please include the following facts. Then we can start immediately and solve your problem as soon as possible.

1. Your full name, address, and telephone number.
2. The name, address, and phone number of the party against whom you are complaining.
3. Copies of any contracts, guarantees, receipts, or other relevant documents that you might have.
4. A complete, signed description of your complaint.
5. A description of what action you, yourself, have taken to solve your problem. Have you discussed it with the business against whom you are complaining? If so, what did they say?

However, there are some things that we cannot do. . . .
1. We cannot act as your lawyer or give you legal advice. If your case is taken to court, you must get your own lawyer.
2. We cannot force a resolution or impose a solution of a conflict between a business and a consumer where the basic facts are in dispute.
3. We cannot recommend one business or product over another.

Where you can reach us

We are at the Mercer County Administration Building, 640 South Broad Street in Trenton. Our phone number is 989-8000 x223. Our office hours are 8:30 - 4:30. And for the convenience of Princeton residents, we have hours at Borough Hall from 1:30-4:30 on the second Monday of every month.

In future weeks we will let you know some of the problems that consumers in Mercer County are having and how you can avoid them. Also we'll tell you about some of the N.J. laws which may not be familiar to you, and your rights as a consumer under these laws. We'll also let you know about some of the things going on with the F.D.A. and and the F.T.C. and how it effects your life.

AWARD RECEIVED

For Canal's Preservation. The Delaware and Raritan Canal Coalition received the fifth annual Conservation Award of the New York-New Jersey River Conference on Saturday. In his acceptance, Ronald Bond, recently-elected Chairman of the Board of the Coalition, said that, "Although the Canal has been made a State park, we still have a long way to go to insure the safety of the Canal. The Coalition still needs a lot of public support in protecting this historic waterway from poor planning and development encroachment."

Lee Bullitt, former president of the Coalition and now a member of the Canal Commission, strock somewhat the same note when she said, "I am delighted that the River Conference saw fit to honor the Canal Coalition. We will do what we can to protect the environment, but vigorous civic organizations must let the government know that they care about the protection of recreational and environmental resources."

THIRD ANNIVERSARY

For Meals on Wheels, Meals on Wheels, started three years ago as a pilot project by the Council of Community Services and then transferred to the Red Cross for administration, will mark its third anniversary this week with a tea at the Red Cross.

The occasion honored the large corps of volunteers, community leaders, organizations and businesses whose planning, support and financial contributions made the program such a success in the area served by the United Fund-Red Cross.

The roster of volunteers at present includes 33 from the Princeton, Lawrenceville, Kingston and Rocky Hill area, 10 from the Hopewell Valley FISH group, and 15 from the East Windsor Woman's Club in Hightstown.

The Hopewell Valley FISH group pick up meals at Princeton House, where they are packed for all the Princeton routes, and deliver them to clients in the Hopewell Valley area. Hightstown volunteers operate out of a facility at R.C.A. Astro, and deliver in the Hightstown-East Windsor area.

Thus, a large area is covered for those in need of a daily hot meal and cold supper who, for reasons of age, health or temporary disability cannot provide their own meals.

Others Cited. Among the individuals cited for their early involvement with the program are Donald Hutton, associate administrator of the Medical Center at Princeton, and Maxine McCown, director of dietary, under whose auspices the food planning and preparation are carried out; Joseph Danchak, food supervisor at R.C.A Astro; Nancy White, former director of the Council of Community Services; and Jan Pierson, present director of C.C.S. and original co-chairman, with Libby Johnson, of Meals of Wheels.

Also representatives from the Princeton Soroptomist and Kiwanis Clubs, and the Princeton Polychrome Press were included as their early contributions have helped finance the program.

The price for a hot meal and cold supper has been raised from $2.50 to $3 a day, reflecting the increase in food costs and preparation, but those unable to pay are assured of service through this seed money provided by local organizations and businesses. No one is ever denied service because of inability to pay.

Joan Plummer, present Meals on Wheels chairman, has announced that in the past three years 11,941 meal deliveries have been made for 151 different clients. Deliveries have increased from 2,005 in 1972, to 3,809 in 1973, to 5,327 in 1974. "In the three years of operation," Mrs. Plummer said, "we have had to cancel meal deliveries only three times because of bad weather. . . .It's a wonderful program, and especially satisfying to volunteers who know they are helping keep people out of nursing homes."

Letters of Thanks. This attitude is reflected by the many letters the Red Cross receives. A recent one from Mrs. Charles H. Teall expresses her feelings:

"Before another day goes by, I must tell you how much these 'meals on wheels' mean to me above and beyond the food itself (which couldn't be better). But more than the food, it has given me a daily contact with the 'outside world' and frees me from complete dependence upon my husband. If there is anything I can do for the Red Cross from bed, please let me know, I'm good at writing and have an electric typewriter.

"Several of the volunteers have told my husband that they like our house...imagine! This little shanty, built in 1890. I was born here and mean to keep it until, as Kipling said, 'the last picture is painted and the tubes are twisted and dried.'"

The Princeton Meals on Wheels program is also active as a resource center for new programs starting in the State. The 13 municipalities covered by the Princeton program include Princeton Borough and Township, Hightstown, East and West Windsor, Cranbury, Griggstown, Kingston, Plainsboro, Rocky Hill, Montgomery Township and parts of Lawrence and Hopewell Townships.

To apply for daily delivery of Meals on Wheels, or to volunteer to help, call the Red Cross at 924-2404.

ART
In Princeton

3-MAN SHOW OPENS

At Loft Gallery Center. A three-man show in graphics, oils and sculpture has opened at the Loft Gallery Center for the Arts, 306 Alexander Street, and will continue through March. The Gallery is open Tuesday through Saturday from 9 to 5 and there is free parking.

The exhibit includes the graphics of Herb Appelson, oils by Joseph Tishler and sculpture by Douglas McIlvain. All three have received awards in juried shows and their work is included in many private collections.

Mr. Appleson teaches art at Glassboro State College. His woodcuts contrast bold textural masses with strong silhouettes. His latest "Gatsby" series exemplifies the play of visual pastiche.

Mr. Tishler makes use of strong geometric forms in his oil paintings, which carry the eye with rhythm through the planes of composition. He brings a very personal approach to staid themes. Mr. Tishler also teaches at Glassboro.

A teacher at Georgian Court College, Mr. McIlvain works with both wood and bronze. His wood pieces are lyrical expressions which are encouraged to be touched by the viewer.

SUNDAY HOURS ADDED

To Exhibit at Squibb. Squibb Gallery will be open to the public on Sunday, from 1 to 5 because of the popular appeal of the current exhibition.

Squibb is showing life-size and larger wood sculpture and fabric collage wall hangings by Louise Kruger. Art reviewers have declared the exhibition of human and animal figures hewn from massive logs "a happy exhibit."

Miss Kruger was selected by the Museum of Modern Art for its New Talent Award in 1955 and last year won the National Community Art Competition in Washington, D.C.

The exhibition continues through next Thursday and is open weekdays from 9 to 4:30. Squibb Gallery is located in the World Headquarters of E. R. Squibb on Route 206 three miles south of Princeton.

UNICEF ON VIEW

Best Drawings Exhibited. Outstanding drawings submitted by young artists in the United States to the 1974 UNICEF International Children's Art Competition will be exhibited in the Lower Level galleries of the New Jersey State Museum starting this Friday. The show will be on view through April 27.

Last year's contest attracted about 250,000 entries from 57 countries. Of those submitted by artists in the United States, about 100 are on view in the State Museum. They were selected by a panel of authorities as "the best" of the 15,000 submitted.

PROOF COPY ACQUIRED

By State Museum. The artist's proof of a new Alex Katz lithograph, "Grey Paddling," has been acquired by the New Jersey State Museum. It was the gift of the artist.

The seven-color lithograph was conceived from a Katz painting of a girl canoeing on a lake. The artist has produced 100 additional prints, numbered and signed, of which 75 are being offered for sale at $300 each as a fund-raising project for the Friends of the Museum. The remaining 25, at $400 each, will be available to collectors through the Marlborough Gallery in New York.

Information is available from the Friends of the New Jersey State Museum, Cultural Center, Trenton, 08625.

ART FILMS TO BEGIN

At Public Library. A series of three family art films, featuring Gertrude Stein, Picasso and Henry Matisse, will be shown at the Princeton Public Library beginning next Tuesday at 8, and continuing on March 18 and 25.

The first showing will be a portrait of Gertrude Stein as a writer, including testimonials from her friends, set in France and the U.S. both before and after World War II. It is entitled "Gertrude Stein: When This You See, Remember Me."

The March 18 film is "Picasso." It is a biographical offering with a meeting of his circle of friends, including Stravinsky, Cocteau, Oris and Braque, plus a depiction of many of his paintings.

The third film on March 25 portrays the Henri Matisse Centennial at the Grand Palais in Paris in 1970, which was a massive display of Matisse as painter, sculptor and architect.

Each film is over an hour in length. The public is invited, free of charge.

Three-year-olds may be placed in two- or three-day a week programs. The toddler class of two-years-olds will continue to meet twice a week.

SERVICE TO RESUME

For Forecasting Weather. The agricultural weather forecast telephone service for New Jersey farmers resumes March 3 after a three-month absence, according to James Carr, meteorologist at Rutgers University.

When the system returns to operation, farmers can call (201)828-3091 at any time and hear the latest weather forecasts and outlooks explained in terms of day-to-day agricultural operations such as field work, spraying and irrigation.

Carr, advisory agricultural meteorologist in the National Weather Service (NWS) office at Rutgers' Cook College, said operations of the telephone system were suspended last December in an NWS economy move.

Fresh forecasts are fed into the system twice each weekday with an outlook for the weekend recorded on Friday and remaining available until Monday morning, said Carr.

More than 8,300 calls were logged in by the system during 1974, with nearly 3,400 of them coming during the peak growing months of May and June.

CHINA CONFERENCE SET

To Discuss Its World Role. A Conference on China, featuring four outside speakers including the Tanzanian Ambassador to the U.S., will be held next Saturday March 15, from 9 to 5 in the Third World Center, Olden and Prospect Avenues.

The conference is sponsored by the Princeton University Chinese Students Association, the U.S.-China Peoples' Friendship Association at Princeton, the Third World Center, the Undergraduate Assembly and the Dean of Student Affairs Office, Princeton University, the American Whig-Chosophic Society and other Princeton Departments.

Planning committee chairman Lennie Ding, '75 described three factors as the basis of the conference--the entrance of the People's Republic of China into world politics and its impact, close relations between China and nation of the Third World, particularly within the United Nations, and third, changing U.S.-Chinese relations.

The first lecture at 10 will be given by William Hinton, national chairperson of the U.S. China People's Friendship Association, who will describe the "Socialist Transformation of China" since 1949. Next, Professor Paul Lin, director of the East Studies Department at McGill University, will speak on "China's Outlook of the World," including her position on such world crises as food, energy and population.

Following lunch, Ambassador Bomani of Tanzania will speak at 2 on China from the perspective of Third World nations. The final lecture will be given by Professor Ross Terrill, of Harvard University's Department of Government, on "Changing U.S.-China Relations," including the limitations of the present relationship.

Foul Shooting Carries Princeton to Triumphs In Final Two Games, and Hopefully into NIT

Princeton's basketball team roared past Brown and then, showing the effects of three tough games in five days at the end of a long season, stumbled past Yale last weekend to finish its regular schedule with a highly satisfactory 18-8 mark and a victory string of nine straight.

The Tigers are hopeful that such a performance, which brought a second-place finish in the Ivy League by three full games, will produce a berth in the National Invitation Tournament. Early bids will go out Sunday, with a 16-team field scheduled to begin play in Madison Square Garden Saturday, March 15.

Princeton went to the NIT three years ago, the first Ivy team to do so after play in other than the NCAA Tournament had been cleared by league officials. On that occasion, the Tigers, captained by Al Duffy and paced by Brian Taylor in his final year, conquered Indiana, 68-60, but were then eliminated by Niagara, 65-60.

In subsequent years, second place Ivy finishes were not enough to bring NIT recognition. The current 18-8 mark is, however, the best since Princeton last went to the post season tournament in the Garden, and a national ranking among the top five in defense for the past two years should also work for Coach Pete Carril's team.

Margins Are Small. The 17th and 18th victories of the winter were scored over Brown by 61-57 and Yale by 76-68. The latter contest was an anti climax as far as the Ivy race was concerned, because a two hour difference in starting times for the Yale-Princeton and Brown-Penn games had brought word of the Quakers' demolition of the Bruins by an 89-48 score.

The triumph gave Penn its sixth straight Ivy title. A seven year stretch on top that Dartmouth reeled off from 1938 through 1944 still stands as the league record.

The Brown game was without question the best of the year in Jadwin, which isn't really much of a superlative, because only the 50-49 triumph over Penn in early January could compare with it. On that occasion, the Tigers took a 16-point lead and then blew all but the last one, whereas the contest with the Bruins was jammed with fast, see-saw action. The game was tied nine times and the lead changed hands 16 times, the last with just 43 seconds to go as the Tigers finally moved in front for good.

Most noteworthy factor of the rapidly paced contest was the height (or lack of it) of the 14 players involved. The tallest was 6-7 Barnes Hauptfuhrer, there were several just two or three inches over six feet, and two more who were a couple of inches short of that. The result was topflight ball handling, excellent passing, numerous perfectly timed fast breaks and a variety of steals.

Score Tied at Half. A few defensive problems combined with rebounding deficiencies off the offensive board hurt the Tigers in the opening half, and they were no better than 33-all at the intermission. The Bruins had a five-point lead (26-21) with six minutes to go, but Princeton hung tight and was never in danger of falling seriously behind. In contrast to steady shuttling of Brown players from the bench, Pete Carril stayed with his starting five (Mickey Stegerer, Armond Hill, Brien O'Neill, Jim van Blommesteyn and Hauptfuhrer).

Defense took almost total charge when play resumed. Princeton's zone inhibited Brown, but the Tigers were cold when they had the ball, and with 9:06 gone, the 33-all tie was a 41-all tie, 16 total points. Four minutes later, van Blommesteyn drew his fourth personal and Pete Molloy replaced him. Twenty seconds after that, Carril drew his nearly inevitable technical but Molloy, who had in effect coached the team when Carril was ejected at Charlottesville four days earlier, was able to remain in the lineup when Carril drew no further technicals.

The Tigers got their first relatively big lead at 47-41 with eight minutes to go, but failed to bring the ball in within five seconds, lost possession under the Brown basket and the visitors promptly achieved a valuable three-point play to cut their deficit in two. Persistence paid off for Brown, and after trading for nearly ten minutes, it took the lead at 66-61, 66-63.

Stegerer's back-door layup returned the advantage to the Orange and Black, but Brown drew even on the first of a 1 and 1 with 57 seconds left. Hill was then fouled as Princeton began to run out the clock in an attempt to set up a final shot, and the Tigers were in front at 68-66 with 43 seconds left when he converted both.

Costly Penalty. Brown seemingly had the tieing field goal ten seconds later, but when the ball was batted downward into the basket as it was bouncing on the rim, offensive goal-tending was called and the Bruins' lost not only two points but possession. A personal against Hauptfuhrer to break up the freeze then gave the victors two more points just before time ran out.

A 10 for 10 performance by the Tigers at the foul line in the second half was vital to the outcome, when both teams managed 24 field goals. The four players who are averaging in double figures all made it there: Hill, 16, for the sixth straight game; Stegerer, 15; Hauptfuhrer, 14; and van Blommesteyn, 10.

An uninformed onlooker at the Yale-Princeton proceedings would never have been able to tell which team had lost nine straight coming into the game and which was hoping to win its ninth in a row. The Elis led several times during the early portion of the opening half, once by six points, and trailed by only that many (37-31) at the intermission.

Down by 11 (52-41) four minutes after action resumed, they battled back consistently and with 1:13 to go could quite conceivably have staged a major upset as they again were only six behind. The Tigers then accounted for four of the last six points (on three foul shots by Hill and one by Molloy) to nail down the decision.

Yale's captain, Gary Franks, a 6-4 guard, was very much the spoiler in the act, as he hit for 10 of 21 shots from the floor and four out of five at the line for 24 points—nearly five times his season's average of [illegible]. The presumably disorganized Elis, who eventually lost their 20th game in 21 starts, gave the tired Tigers fits. Both Hill and Stegerer had the ball stolen right out of their hands during the evening for Yale baskets, a "dainty double" with fantastic odds against it.

As had been the case against Brown, Princeton needed time and shooting to prevail. When the Elis collected 29 field goals to 7 for the home team, it took good [illegible] work at the free

Here's a baseball oddity...Even though the American League uses the designated hitter, and the National League does not, the National League scored more runs than the American League last season...American League teams averaged 4.09 runs per game last year, while National League teams averaged 4.15 runs per game.

Surprisingly, in the entire history of the National Basketball Association, only two teams have ever won back-to-back league championships...The Celtics have won the league title in consecutive years, and the only other team in the NBA that's ever done it is the Lakers...And in the American Basketball Association, only one team has ever won the league championship in consecutive years, and that's Indiana.

Hockey Team Has 7th Straight Losing Season But Rink Rats' Loyalty Remains Undiminished

The hockey season that had begun with such bright hopes for Princeton after an upsurge last winter ended in Baker Rink Saturday with a 4-3 loss to Boston College. It was the 12th straight year that the Tigers have finished with a defeat, despite the fact that on this occasion they were playing a team whose record in Division I of the ECAC was worse than theirs.

Normally among the best in the east, B.C. has been struggling of late, and this winter was no better than 5-12-[illegible] in its division. The Eagles trailed twice in the contest, but as has so often been the case, Princeton lacked the staying power to hold its early advantage.

Dune Fisher's first-period goal got the home team off to a good start and after it was tied before the round ended, Mike Bascom put it in front again at 6:45 of the middle round. The visitors then took complete charge with a three-goal outburst in five minutes, their 4-[illegible] lead proving insurmountable.

A tip-in by Kris Kollevol in the final round narrowed the gap but that was not enough. The victors triumph was their seventh in a row over the Orange and Black, which finished with an overall mark of [illegible], three less victories than it recorded a year ago.

Future Not Bright. Until Princeton plays better defensive hockey, the likelihood that it will attain its long sought goal of topping the .500 mark and qualifying for the ECAC playoffs is dim. This year's team yielded an average of 5.1 goals over the season, and hockey players matriculating here simply do not have the scoring power to overcome that size deficit against them.

The problem next year is that the present senior class will take with it better player-ability than appears likely to develop from maturing players who remain on the varsity, plus the current crop of freshmen. The latter were [illegible] on the season and generally had a problem defensively when the opposition was tough.

Graduating in June will be Mark Stuckey, the team's leading scorer and only player with breakaway speed, Captain Brad Richards, a three-year letterman and experienced first line center; wing Mike Bascom, also a three-year letter winner and a capable member of Richards' line, and three defensemen, Jim Damberger, Roy Hopper and Ralph Keeter, who helped give the Tigers greater than usual depth behind the blue line. Mike O'Leary will be back in the goal with a troubled sophomore year under his belt and should be the better for it, but with frequently inadequate protection, he was charged with a goals-against average of just about what the team itself allowed: 5.1.

It has now been seven years since Princeton won more games than it lost, and because hockey is among the numerous college sports in which players are steadily improving, the Tigers are confronted with the fact that they have to get better just to have a chance of staying even. They did not, this year, and a lower won-lost record was the result.

No capsule review of the hockey situation here would be complete without mention of the extreme degree of fan loyalty. Despite the fact that the team tied or lost almost three times as many games as it won, with only one of the half dozen victories recorded at home, the many Rink Rats in this non-oriented hockey area were faithful, and hopeful to the end.

On two occasions when they bought the rink out (for Harvard and Cornell) the total score against Princeton was 19 to [illegible]. Even losing hockey can have tremendous crowd appeal.

Trophy to Stuckey

Mark Stuckey, top scorer and a center on the Princeton hockey team, was awarded the Blackwell Trophy Saturday night between periods of the Boston College game in Baker Rink. He is the third member of his family to have won it: his father, Daniel K. Stuckey '42, was the recipient in his senior year and his brother, Peter, shared it with Bill Ramsey six years ago.

The trophy is given to the team member who, "in play, sportsmanship and influence has contributed most to the sport." Although he missed several games through injuries in both his sophomore and junior years, Stuckey had a career total of 70 points on 38 goals and 32 assists.

[illegible] time including all nine in the last half to bring victory. Yale was 10 for 15, the discrepancy in shots awarded causing frequent dismay to Yale coach Joe Vancisin.

Hill's 11 for 12 in foul shooting and 19 point total was [illegible] plus for the Tigers, as was a 20 point performance in less than 30 minutes for Hauptfuhrer, who lost much playing time in the second half when he was withdrawn after four personals and then returned only to foul out. Scuerer and van Blommestevn had a dozen apiece to round out the usual quartet in double figures.

PHS ELIMINATED EARLY In NJSIAA by Hillsborough. Princeton High School was eliminated in the first round of Group Two action in the annual NJSIAA post-season basketball tournament Monday afternoon when it was nipped, 73-72, by Hillsborough on the Raiders' home court.

PHS lost despite five double-point performances and despite leading most of the time. The Raiders were only 9-14 entering the game and although the Little Tigers were not much better at 6-9, they had won their last three in a row and were rated a slight favorite.

"There was only one way we were going to lose to this club," commented a disappointed Marv Trotman," and that was not to play basketball. "There's no other description," continued the PHS coach.

"We just didn't play. We didn't execute, we didn't do anything. We didn't deserve to win."

PHS jumped to an early 4-0 lead and led throughout the entire first half, going to the locker room with a 33-29 margin. Pete Watson had nine and Daryl Marshall eight first-half points, while Roland Alexander, Randy Bullock, Felix Brown and Junior Oldham all had four, Watson finished with 19, Marshall 14, Brown 12, Bullock, 11 and Oldham, 10.

Roger Drehs, 6-4 center for the Raiders, who didn't start, had one of those games. After Bullock had given PHS its biggest edge, 23-17 with 4:46 left in the second period, Drehs went to work. He sandwiched two field goals around a Jim Johnson score and then got the last two baskets in the half as Hillsborough narrowed Princeton's lead to 27-25.

Two Plays, 6 Points. Drehs opened the second half with back-to-back three-point plays. He had 10 of his 23 in the third quarter. Meanwhile, the steady Johnson, the second leading scorer in Somerset County with a 19.2 average, had quarters of 6, 4, 6, 7 to tie Drehs for scoring honors at 23 each. The game was tied seven times in the second half.

The Raiders went ahead, 69-65, with 1:36 left but it was still anybody's game when Watson sank two fouls, Bullock converted half of a 1-and-1 and then added a layup when Marshall stole the Raiders's inbound pass. PHS 70, Hillsborough 69.

Johnson hit a long one-handed jumper to give the lead back to the home team and then Brown was called for reaching over Drehs with 14 seconds left. Drehs missed the first shot of the 1-and-1 but this was one game where he could do no wrong. He grabbed his own rebound and made the shot. Bullock scored with two seconds to go.

It was a frustrating loss for PHS which has not fared well in NJSIAA play. Several times it seemed on the verge of opening up its lead but was unable to. In the final period, an old weakness--poor foul shooting--came back with a vengence.

Bullock missed two free throws, Oldham missed the first shot of two 1-and-1 situations, as did Watson. "Oldham's young. He'll come back," said Trotman. But he was correct in his assessment: when the chips were down, PHS didn't execute.

PHS thus finished 6-10. Trotman says he intends to come back next year as coach, but this is one season he'd just as soon forget.

PDS FIVE WINS TITLE

Holds Off Neumann in Final. Winner of the State Class B Prep School tourney for the second straight year, the PDS basketball team and Coach Alan Taback can look ahead to next season with all the confidence of a local UCLA. Their top four players will all return next year from a team that began this season as inexperienced underdogs and ended it with nine victories in a row and a 17-5 record.

On top of that, the Star Ledger has just ranked Princeton Day School the number one prep team in the state, ahead of Lawrenceville, which won the Class A championship and defeated PDS earlier in the season by nine points. These laurels lend substance to Taback's assertions that "this is the closest bunch of guys I've ever coached" and that "we're the best prep defensive team in the state."

Proof of this came Saturday against Neumann Prep (16-9, seeded fifth) in the state finals when PDS squandered all-but two of a 13-point lead in the final minutes before sporting away to a 61-52 win. Neumann had scored 78 points to upset Rutgers Prep in the semi-finals, and its 6'4" star Bob LaCorte had accounted for 30 and 34 points in his two state tourney games, but PDS throttled the Neumann offense, and 6'1" Billy Martin held LaCorte to 14. Having contributed similar performances all season, Martin was understandably lauded by Taback as "the best defensive player I've ever coached."

Playing laurels were also earned by Frank Konstantynowicz who sank three pressure foul shots in the final minute against Neumann to wind up with 22 points and five second-half assists. And there was Bill Baggitt, cited by Taback as "our most improved player." He tallied two invaluable lay-ups with the score 52-49, and ended up with 14 points, plus 18 rebounds. Finally, there was center Randy Melville, who also brought down 18 rebounds, while scoring eight straight points during a decisive 12-point PDS string in the third period. Senior guards Keith Thomas and Paul Goldman, plus freshman Gary Walters, also contributed several baskets and steady defensive play.

Up Side of a See-Saw. The see-saw tensions of the final proved that PDS had overcome its early-season tendency to fold under pressure. Taback said that since late January, "the team had developed its own tempo, running when it had the opportunity, otherwise controlling the play slowly, being relaxed." Thus, PDS didn't change its rhythm, even after Neumann sank four buckets in a row from 20 feet, almost pulling even with three minutes left.

Similarly, in the semi-finals against Wardlaw, PDS squeaked out a 60-59 win on a short jomper by Baggitt with 36 seconds remaining. The Panthers held on as Wardlaw scored with 16 seconds left, but missed a long shot at the buzzer, after Walters of PDS had missed a foul shot just six seconds earlier.

Wardlaw's running attack almost upended PDS, which was forced to come back from a seven-point first quarter deficit to tie at the half. In all, the game was tied nine times, and Wardlaw became the only team all season to force PDS into a zone defense.

Konstantynowicz again led the way with 17 points, while Baggitt chipped in 16 and Melville 15. This scoring almost duplicated Konstantynowicz's season average of nearly 16 points per game and Melville's average of 15. Martin, however, slipped below his season average of 12 ppg with just four points.

With each of these players back next season, Taback deserves to be a little cocky. "It looks mighty good, if we stay healthy," he said, referring to the fact that Martin and Baggitt must first survive football season. But he knows that his team has achieved what he set as a goal in mid-season--"we'll be good when everyone knows what they should be doing all the time." Like winning the state championship.

HUN FIVE VICTOR

In NYC Tournament. Loser last week in the Class A Prep School state basketball tournament, the Hun School squad had better luck in the opening round of the Loyola Invitational Tournament in New York City.

Placing five men in double figures, Hun defeated Franklin School, 86-73. Ahead by two at the half, Hun broke the game open with a 25-12 third period margin.

Freshman Ron Payton paced Hun with 21 points, as he also hauled down 16 rebounds and blocked five shots. Tony Trani and Nick Brady each hit for 19, Trani contributing eight assists as he gave every sign of a full recovery from a knee injury that had sidelined him for three games.

Terry McEwen scored 14 points and Mike Troyanovitch, 11. These five accounted for all but two of Hun's points.

Friday at Pennington School, Hun defeated the Red Raiders, 55-50, to alone for an earlier setback at their hands but the game meant little else for Hun as Pennington had already clinched the championship of the Penn-Jersey League's northern division. Hun led at the half, 30-22.

Hun's all-time scorer, Trani, added to his total with 22 points, followed by Brady, who had 14, and McEwen, 9. Jerry Eure, the losers' fine shooting guard, led Pennington with 21. It was Pennington's seventh loss in 27 starts. Hun's 18th victory in 25 outings.

PADDLE TITLE WON

By Top-Ranking Women. Connie Fleming and Patsy Van Dusen defeated Sue McCabe and Jacque Parmele, 6-2, 6-4, to win the first Women's Princeton Area League Platform Tennis Championship at Community Park Courts. After 12 weeks of match play, Fleming and Van Dusen finished the regular season with an impressive 26-1 set record within their division. McCabe and Parmele went into the play-off championships with a 23-4 record.

Annual IC4A Indoor Track Meet This Weekend To Draw over 1,100 Entries from 79 Colleges

New Jersey's outstanding track meet of the year, the 54th annual indoor championshpis of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateor Athletics of America (IC4A) will be held Saturday and Sunday at Jadwin Gymnasium

A record field of 79 colleges and 1,138 athletes will participate in the 17-event program. All the track powers of the East are entered including Villanova, 13-time winner of the indoor team title since 1957, and victor last year by one point over Manhattan and Seton Hall.

Events will start at 11 on Saturday and 1:30 on Sunday. For ticket information, call the University ticket office at 452-3538

For Princeton, the chief threats will be sophomore pole vaulter Dan Williges, who holds the Tiger outdoor record of 15-10 and has vaulted 15-7 indoors, and their two-mile relay team.

Chuck Hedrick, Jeff Wicksel and Craig Masback were members of the Tiger relay team which set a school record of 7:32 last year in the two-mile at the IC4A meet. They are all back and have been joined by Chuck Norelli, a former swimmer, who has proven to be a solid asset to the track team.

"Overall, this team is better than last year's," commented Phil Langan, sports information director for the Tigers.

Williges will be hard pressed, however, to defeat Maryland's Drew Herndon who captured the pole vault last year with a 16-0 mark. His best this year is 16-6.

The IC4A meet record of 16-8½ was set in 1972 by Tom Blair of Penn.

The two-mile meet record is 7:30.8 set in 1973 by Fordham. It was captured last year by another Fordham qoartet with a clocking of 7:31.8 as Princeton finished third behind Manhattan.

The best time in the event this year has been posted by Villanova——a sparkling 7:25.6

Coach Jumbo Elliott's Wildcats from Villanova are rated the team to beat again this year but Seton Hall and Maryland are expected to present formidable challenges.

There are ten 1974 winners returning; eight will defend and two will shift to other events. The defenders are Ike Owens of Navy, 60-yard dash; Charles Dobson of William and Mary, a two-year hordles winner; Charles Joseph of Seton Hall, 440-yard run (he is also an IC4A 100 and 220 outdoor champion). Keith Francis of Boston College, 1000-yard run; Ireland's Tom Gregan of Villanova, mile run; Cornell's Dave Doupe, a 62-2½ shotputter; and Drew Herndon of Maryland in the pole vault.

Eaamonn Coghlan of Villanova, also from Ireland, last year's 880 winner, shifts to the mile, which the Wildcats have won 15 times since Fred Dwyer, now the Manhattan coach, started the string in 1951-53. Ed Lennex of St. Joseph's, 1973 high jump champion, will confine himself this year to the triple jump, his favorite event.

Two former IC4A winners, Villanova's Ken Schappert who won the 880 in 1973, is aiming for the 1000-yard title, while Manhattan's Ken McBryde, 1973 triple jump winner and record breaker, will seek to regain his IC4A title.

Saturday's events will consist of running event trials, quarter finals, semi-finals, two finals and field event trials. Fifteen finals will be decided on Sunday.

This is the fifth year that the IC4A championships have been held in Jadwin. Previously, the varsity classic was held in New York's Madison Square Garden from 1934 through 1970 and before that in New York armories.

TIGERS SWEEP

In Women's Squash. The U.S. Women's Intercollegiate Squash Racquets Championships held last week at Harvard turned oot to be an exclusive Princeton University event the semi-finals on.

In the championship match, Wendy Zaharko, the defending intercollegiate champion, defeated teammate Emily Goodfellow, 15-4, 15-4, 15-5. Wendy is the first player ever to take the title three times, winning also in 1972 and 1974. She did not compete in 1973

In the semi-finals, Wendy defeated CeCe Turner, Princeton captain, in straight sets, while Goodfellow defeated freshman teammate Nancy Gengler in five sets, 15-10, 15-6, 17-18, 5-15, 15-12.

Princeton also won the consolations when sophomore Amie Knox defeated Yale's Sarah Myskens, 12-15, 15-9, 15-8, 15-5

Princeton High School gym. The first game, starting at 7, will pit the Township against East Windsor police; the second at 8:15 will match the Borough against West Windsor.

"We are all aware of the wonderful work the March of Dimes is doing for crippled children. We take great pleasure in supporting this worthwhile charity," said PBA President Ptl. Robert Nielsen.

Donations may be sent to the PBA Association Local No. 130, P.O. Box 568, or tickets may be purchased at the door.

TWO FROM PHS ADVANCE To NJSIAA Mat Regionals. Dave Robinson and Fred Eiker of the Princeton High School wrestling team have advanced to the NJSIAA Region 5 championships which will be held Friday and Saturday at Hunterdon Central in Flemington.

Both were defeated Saturday night at the Hunterdon Central gym in the final round, Robinson getting pinned by Bob Hembauser of North Hunterdon in 5:25 in the 122-pound class and Eiker losing a 9-1 decision to Hunterdon Central's Daryl Kanach in the 158-pound class. Hembauser and Kanach were each seeded No. 1 in their respective divisions, while Robinson and Eiker were each No. 2.

In the final team standings, PHS finished fifth among 12 teams with 16½ points. As expected, first-place was a two-way battle between Hunterdon Central and North Hunterdon with the former edging North Hunterdon, 101½ to 99½, to repeat as team champion. North Hunterdon had been a slight favorite.

The first two finishers in each class advance to the Regionals. Last year, Angelo Arcaro, PHS 170-pounder, finished second in the Districts but went on to win the Regional championship--the first ever by a Little Tiger wrestler. PHS coach Tom Murray says that he thinks both Robinson and Eiker will do well in the Regionals.

Robinson won a superior decision and a 20-1 decision in his first two matches before losing to Hembauser. "Dave just didn't wrestle up to his potential at all," commented Murray on the final bout. "He knows it and I know it." Hembauser entered the Districts with a 12-6-1 record. Robinson was 5-1-1.

Eiker was completely dominated by Kanach who had lost only once in 23 matches prior to the District but Eiker,

Dave Robinson

Fred Eiker

according to Murray, could have walked off the mat a District champion if he so chose.

Eiker was losing 6-0, with 39 seconds to go when Kanach slammed him to the mat and worked him into a near fall. It was an illegal slam, Murray said. "I could have taken him off the mat right then and he would have been Regional champion," Murray continued.

"Fred was woozy and I asked him if he understood what was happening. He told me that he did and that he didn't want to end the match, he wanted to continue. He didn't want to get a championship under those conditions.

"I'm proud of him," Murray said. "And I'm sure the other boy didn't intentionally slam Eiker. If I had thought even for a moment that he had done it on purpose, I wouldn't have hesitated....." The Murray-Eiker decision to continue cost North Hunterdon the team championship. "I was really caught in the middle," said Murray.

Paul Soderman, out for the sport for the first time this year, wrestled a standout match against top-seeded Chris Holcombe of West Windsor in the 170-pound division before losing, 2-1. Holcombe had a 15-0-1 record. "Soderman did a helluva job; he did everything I could have expected of him," said Murray.

Murray also cited sophomore Jim O'Grady who lost on a referee's decision in his first match.

JOINT EFFORT ROMPS To Win Basketball Title. Joint Effort outraced the upset hopes of previously-unbeaten Bill Brown and Company, 102-70, last Wednesday, virtually assuring itself an undefeated season and a regular season championship. Joint Effort had one game remaining early this week against mediocre Kingston Wine, before the beginning of the play-offs on Wednesday.

The play-off match-ups pit Joint Effort against Perks, while Bill Brown will square off against third-place Lyons Seafood, in a pair of two-out-of-three series. The winners will then meet in a best-of-three finals, with all play-off games being contested on Monday and Wednesday nights, game times at 7:45 and 9.

Coach John Pesce of Bill Brown tried everything Wednesday night to solve the problem of beating Joint Effort. John found out what eight other teams have before him—Joint Effort does everything too well.

From the opening tap, the 350 fans at Princeton High School were treated to a typical Joint Effort team performance. The league leaders jumped off to a quick 8-0 lead and were never seriously challenged thereafter. Bill Brown came within four points of the lead at 10-6, but never got closer than 11 from then on.

The Joint Effort fast break and outside shooting by John Bailey were both devastating in the first half. And JE pressure caused turnovers, frustrating Bill Brown's attempts to establish a pattern offense. After Bailey's shooting broke a zone defense, Bill Brown went to a man-to-man, which Joint Effort penetrated on numerous baskets by Bob Slaughter and Doug Battle.

Trailing 22-10 after the first quarter, Bill Brown went to Charlie Kireker and Frank Scott in an effort to break the Joint Effort press. Although Kireker only scored two points, his press-breaking passes helped the Bill Brown offense draw temporarily closer. But Dennis Wilson, the league's scoring leader, was continually surrounded by defensive ball hawkers and limited to 21 points. Only Frank Scott produced consistent scoring for Bill Brown, banking in most of his 20 points.

Joint Effort substituted freely throughout the game without detracting from its potency, demonstrating again that its bench is the strongest in the league. John Bailey finished the game with 26 points, easily his best offensive effort of the season.

Joint Effort placed five other players in double figures as Bob Slaughter (16 points), George Tucker (15), Doug Battle (12), John Young and Al Burton (10) contributed to the victory. This balance proved that a joint effort is truly the name of the game.

The Librarians again demonstrated their "Giant Killer" status last week by wrecking Ivy Inn's play-off hopes, 69-49. Although the Librarians have the dubious distinction of providing the Triggers (1-9) with their only victory this year, the team just barely lost to Bill Brown 57-52 and also managed to defeat 4th-place Perks 77-54.

In this upset nothing went right for Ivy. Ivy clearly outshot the Librarians, mostly from good scoring positions, but the team's frustrations mounted as the ball would not fall in the hoop. The Librarians moved well without the ball; something that had not been accomplished since the Perks game. This set up numerous lay-ups as Ivy watched the lead steadily increase.

Ed Yeorcewicz, the Librarians premier guard, led all scorers with 22 points. When not scoring he produced the passes that baffled Ivy's zone. Ivy Inn got a strong performance from center Houston Hinson (20 points), but as Ivy began to press in the later stages of the game, even Houston couldn't convert offensive rebounds into deuces.

Kingston Wine returned to the winning track by defeating the Librarians, 54-52. Kingston alternated between a man and zone defense, using both very effectively.

With the score 50-48, Kingston scored the key basket of the game on a nifty assist by guard Tim Kearns to Bob Wylie. The Librarians pulled within two again on a jump shot by Paul Dent. But Barish's two free throws with 6 seconds left iced the game for Kingston, even though the Librarians managed a last second basket.

Leading the way for Kingston Wine was Frank Francavilla, who not only scored 15 points, but played his best defensive game of the season, with numerous steals. Kingston's continual harrassment of Librarian guards frustrated the Librarians as they could not establish any sort of pattern offense. When Kingston was not going inside to Bob Wylie, they were going over the top with long jump shots by Francavilla and Bill Barish. The Librarians received most of their scoring from forward Chris Chambers.

HUN IS ELIMINATED From State Tournament. The Hun School basketball team was eliminated in the first round of the NJSIAA Class A state championship last week when it was defeated by Newark Academy in overtime, 80-77.

Newark and its all-state candidate Eric Williams will meet Lawrenceville Saturday at 3:30 in the Hun School gym for the Class A championship. Lawrenceville is the defending champion.

Outscored slightly by Newark in each of the first three periods, Hun and its star, Tony Trani playing for the first time in four games, fought back in the closing minute of the final period and actually went ahead, 67-65, on a basket by Nick Brady in the final seconds. Brady, the former Princeton Day School player, played perhaps his best of the season finishing with 21.

But Williams, who has scored 2,084 points so far in a spectacular career, and Newark were not to be denied. With four seconds remaining, William's baseline jumper sent the game into overtime. "He's a very good player. He just stuck it to us with two seconds to go," commented Hun coach Dave Leete.

Hun Fights Back. In the overtime, Williams scored the first four points as the upstate team quickly opened up a 76-69 lead with 1:46 to go. But Hun was not ready to roll over. Off a couple of steals by Brady, Hun popped in six points in 20 seconds to narrow the gap to one with 27 seconds left.

After Newark converted two foul shots (Hun outscored the victors 33-31 from the floor) to go up by three, Ron Payton, freshman center for Hun, retaliated with a driving layup for his 25th and 26th points.

Then with two seconds remaining, Newark's Bob Lee was fouled before he threw the ball in play and he converted both for the final 80-77 margin.

It was a tough loss for the gutsy Red Raiders, who were runners-up last year to Lawrenceville in the championship game. Coming off a torn knee cartilage, Trani said later that "it hurt my play."

After he was charged with his fourth foul early in the third period, he sat on the bench until the final hectic moments. He finished with eight points -far below his season's average of almost 20. He is the leading all-time Hun scorer with 1,226 points.

Trani refused to make excuses but Leete reported that the knee "was bothering him." He estimated Trani was playing at 75 percent of his ability.

Behind Payton and Brady in scoring for Hun were Terry McEwen and Mike Trayanovitch with 10 each. The 6-4 Williams connected on 10 of 14 attempts from the floor and added ten free throws to lead all scorers with 30. Newark sank 55 percent of its shots (31 of 56) to 40 percent for Hun (33 of 82). Newark increased its record to 22-5; Hun is 17-8 with two regular season games left.

WINNERS LISTED In Dog Obedience Trials. The Princeton Dog Training Club held its 18th annual obedience trial Sunday. The highest scoring dog was a Golden Retriever, "Amber of Fairlawn Acres," owned by Mr and Mrs. L. Gerard Hart of Matawan.

Another Golden Retriever, "Moreland's Golden Tonka," owned by Russ Klipple, won the Club Founder's Challenge Trophy for highest combined score in Open B and Utility. Three wins are needed for permanent possession of this trophy, and Mr. Klipple and Tonka have won it twice in a row.

Among the dogs who won prizes whose owners live in Princeton were "Lucky of Shady Brook C.D." owned by Pam Bernsten (High Scoring Dalmation in Trial); "Bihari's Zechristie," Sharon Seitz (4th place, Novice B), Natasha von Hammhausen, U.D., Ed Hamm (4th place, Open B), and "Gesell von Hammhausen U.D.," owned by Ruth Gantz (4th place, Utility).

SOFTBALL PLANNED For Women. Women will have the opportunity this spring to learn and play the game of softball in organized fashion. Copies can also be obtained from any sporting goods store, Hinkson's, Princeton Public Library, University Store, Recreation Office, Hulit's, or from any school office or physical education instructor.

The number of class choices has been expanded for both juniors and adults. A complete range of tennis instruction is being offered from 4th grade through senior citizens. Class size will be limited. Corporate Executives Moving into This Area Assisted by One-Woman Orientation Service

It takes a life-long resident to help the newcomer feel at home.

Mary Ann Higham, who has lived almost all her life on Fiddler's Creek Road in Hopewell Township, offers her services to Mobil, American Cyanamid, Shell, N L Industries, New Jersey National Bank, New Jersey National Bancorporation and other firms, helping their newly-transferred employees find a footing in the strange new world of Mercer, Middlesex, Somerset or Bucks counties.

"High Mara, Inc." ("I like unusual names," Mrs. Higham smiles), was started in mid-1972, after Mrs. Higham had spent six months in the most intensive kind of research and home-work about the region she grew up in.

Her orientation program for newcomers is called "View of Our Valley." It's the Delaware Valley, and she covers both sides of the river, helping people locate themselves anywhere in Mercer County, in the part of Bucks that joins the river, or in Rocky Hill, Plainsboro and even as far as Flemington or New Brunswick.

How It Starts. Let's say a Mobil employee is being transferred from Idaho. The Mobil office here will call Mrs. Higham and give her his name and telephone number.

"I'll call the employee, probably talk as long as half an hour or an hour. I'll ask him what kind of community his family wants to live in---city? rural? suburban? How much can he spend for a house---and people in the midwest or northwest just aren't prepared for the prices around here! Does he want public, private or parochial schools, and do he and his wife favor a liberal and innovative school system or a more traditional approach? What church? clubs? hobbies?"

Mrs. Higham emphasizes that she has no contacts with any real estate firms and doesn't want any. Eventually, she gives her client the Princeton Chamber of Commerce list of member realtors, and tells the client which firms specialize in which areas.

On Arrival... So the husband and wife pay their first visit to the part of the world that will be their new home. Early in the morning around 9 or so, Mrs. Higham calls at their motel. She is a chic young woman, attractive as a model, with a welcoming and dazzling smile. She is also, she admits herself, "a very well-organized person."

The day begins. She brings out a thick folder of pamphlets: maps of Mercer and Bucks, the Mercer County Government Manual, copies of the tax structure of the county and its constituent municipalities, the Princeton Community Phone Book, Bucks County Highways of History, brochures from the developers of various condominiums and housing projects, and a manual of New Jersey motor vehicle regulations. Among others!

WELCOME TO THE VALLEY! Mary Ann Higham spent six months interviewing tax collectors, municipal clerks, school superintendents, and tracking down clubs, organizations and hobby groups before launching her "View of the Valley" orientation program. Companies in the Delaware Valley retain her to help their transferred employees locate in a new community.

"We spend some time going over all this information, looking at the map and blocking out an itinerary based on what they want to see. Then we drive off---and I start my running commentary, pointing out shopping centers, schools, places of interest, indicating what kind of house is likely to cost $50,000 or $90,000 and what its taxes would be in this particular municipality.

"They follow closely, usually making notes on the margin of the map, and asking questions about schools. Well, I taught school in this area for over nine years and I've kept all my contacts, so I can give very concrete answers about education. I can tell them, too, that in Bucks County school districts cover a tremendous area, geographically, while in New Jersey, districts are more apt to be condensed and small. This means a lot to many families."

A Full Day. At lunch-time, Mrs. Higham steers her caravan to some established restaurant---not to a roadside snack-bar---so the family can see what dining out might be like. Then they're off again, and the day usually ends around 5 or 6.

"Yes, it's a long day," she admits, "and I do only three days in a row before taking a break."

After the day in the field, "High Mara" stays in touch until the client is completely settled, providing any additional help the family may need.

All kinds of people leaned on Mrs. Higham for help: the Englishman who wanted to know about credit arrangements for foreigners in local banks, and are there men's soccer clubs?; the chemist wife who wanted leads on a part-time research job; the man who wanted to join an antique pistol-shooting club.

"I love it all!" says Mary Ann Higham with honest enthusiasm. "It's all my own idea, and all my own hard work. I like the challenge---this job rises or falls on my own merits. And I like the people."

WORKSHOP SCHEDULED

On Starting a Business. The Professional Roster will sponsor a "How to Start Your Own Small Business" workshop on Saturday, March 22, from 10 to 1. It will be held at the University League, 171 Broadmead.

A panel of women who have gone into business for themselvs will relate the experiences and answer questions. Retail, service, food, printing and cottage industries will be discussed.

Anyone interested in starting a small business is invited. A contribution of $1 per person will be asked and because seating space is limited, reservations are advisable. For further information and reservations, call the Professional Roster at 921-9561, Monday through Friday, from 10 to 1.

FRUIT MARKET MOVES

Across Witherspoon Street, A&M Fruit, which had been located in the front of the Food Mart for the past 23 years, has moved across the street to a new, larger store at 25 Witherspoon Street. The newly remodeled and panelled store was last occupied—temporarily—by Hulit's Shoes.

A&M Fruit has been a family-run business ever since it was begun by Angelo Alphonse. At times he was helped by his three sons, Allyn, Bob and Mike; for the past three years, it has been operated by his daughter, Mrs. Janice Yacobacci, and her son, Tony.

A&M offers fresh fruit and produce daily—displayed the old-fashioned way. You can pick up and examine each piece. It also has a dairy case, bread and cigarettes. As soon as equipment arrives, Mrs. Yacobacci said that they plan to add a complete delicatessen section.

"A lot of my customers are conscious of the additives and preservatives that are a part of food today, and they come in every day to buy fresh fruit and vegetables," she said.

The store also makes up food baskets and has free delivery. It is open from 8:30 to 6, Monday through Saturday.

Q. What 1974 luxury car was $4975 last January and is still available at $4975 this January?

It was quite a year for price increases. Most cars went up several hundred dollars. But the Audi 100LS is still the same price this January as it was last January. And it's still available.

The Audi is a full-sized luxury car, extraordinarily comfortable. Its seats were orthopedically designed to help prevent fatigue, it has the legroom and headroom of some cars twice the price, it's the only luxury car that combines front-wheel drive, torsion crank rear axle, front disc brakes, rack-and-pinion steering. And it's German engineered to last. And to get about 24 miles to the gallon.*

It may go up in February. But this month you can get it for $4975. Unquestionably.

"ARCHITECTURE IS FROZEN MUSIC"

Nature created the setting; architect and owners, the house; and together they composed an impressive symphony! Set on a stunning four acre hillside and set off by its many rugged boulders and towering trees, the house was designed to flow with the land. Large areas of bronze tinted glass take advantage of breathtaking outlooks to south and west; small intimate balconies and protective "play decks" bring inside and outside together. Views are everywhere.

The house is spacious—with a living room whose ceiling soars almost three stories high, and six or seven bedrooms situated for the ultimate in privacy for parents and guests—yet intimate and warm in its use of materials, color and scale. Throughout the house, from superb kitchen, tasteful baths, dressing rooms, numerous closets, two zone air conditioning to the smallest detail, only the best has been used. This is a home to enthrall all admirers of fine contemporary design. $265,000
